BENNETT MYSTERY BAFFLING

NAPLES, June 12.—The disappearance of Holland Bennett, the young Boston lawyer, from the steamship Berlin, which arrived here from Genoa yesterday, has presented the police with a mystery that they cannot solve.

The general theory is that he fell in some way from the vessel. Another is that he was lured fro mthe Berlin at Genoa, kidnapped by Cammora agents and held for ransom. The American consul at Naples, Genoa and the other Italian cities have taken up the investigation with the police authorities. Mrs. Bennett was prostrated to-day and placed under the care of a physician.

Young Bennett and his bride boarded the Berlin at Genoa on Tuesday evening shortly before the steamship sailed for Naples. Mrs. Bennett went to the reading room and her husband to the smoking room. Half an hour after the Berlin sailed the bride went in search of her husband. She could find no trace of him. Officers searched the ship thoroughly. Everybody on board was questioned.

No one recalled seeing the young man leave the ship, but in the confusion of passengers' friends going ashore he might easily have gone away unnoticed. It was dark when the Berlin sailed from Genoa.

TRYING TO GET NEWS OF BENNETT OVER WIRELESS

In an attempt to clear the mystery surrounding the death of Holland Bennett, Harvard graduate, and member of the bar of Boston, efforts were made to-day to reach the young widow who is continuing her trip home on the same boat.

Young Mrs. Bennett, who was Miss Lucrette Averill Upham, daughter of City Auditor Harry P. Upham of Cambridge, so far as cablegrams tell of the tragedy, is unable to explain how her husband met his strange fate.

20,000 SEE BALL GAME

Great Crowd Out for Red Sox Contest with Cleveland To-day. Doves' Battle in Chicago Doubtful.

Two great baseball games occupy the attention of Boston to-day.

At the Huntington Avenue Grounds here it was estimated that by the time the Red Sox and Clevelands got into action there would be at least 20,000 people within the enclosure. While "Cy" Young got away with his game yesterday, the Red Sox were playing ball all the time, and the local team was a strong favorite for to-day's contest.

In Chicago the Doves, having broken the long series of defeats which they have suffered, went after the Cubs in a second contest. Showers early in the day made the play somewhat doubtful, however.

HUNTINGTON AVENUE GROUNDS, June 12.—With the strong determination to even up for the defeats sustained at the hands of Old Cy Young yesterday, the Boston Red Sox went after the Cleveland Naps in true revengeful style.

Owing to the slump the Red Legs took in batting yesterday, the main reason being the grand work of Cy Young, Manager Lake, sharpened up his men's batting eyes in morning practice and this afternoon was determined to get more than three safe bingles.

To-day is the first Saturday this year that weather conditions were anywhere near perfect for a game, and on account of the fine conditions the bugs came in thousands to the park. The usual Saturday afternoon crowd was greatly swelled by the fans who strained a point in business matters to get out to the Back Bay grounds on account of the great ball the Red Sox are putting up. Jerome Kelley, boss of the grounds at the Taylor park, had his ropes all in readiness to press into service in case the crowd should overflow the stands.

CROWDS IN MIGHTY RUSH FOR RED SOX-NAPS GAME

As the time approached for the Red Sox and Clevelands to begin hostilities the fans were still pouring into the Huntington avenue grounds.

Lajoie was expected to put in the great Joss for the Clevelands and Arellanes looked to be Lake's choice.

AUTO DRIVER FATALLY HURT IN HILL CLIMB.

Billy Bourke, driver of a Knox car, is dying as the result of the two right wheels of his car coming off while he was going up Deadhorse Hill, Worcester, in the fourth annual hill-climbing contest. He was half way up the hill when he ran into a ditch. The car was wrecked and he received a fractured skull and bodily injuries.

ROOSEVELT ELEPHANT LUCK POOR

NAIVESHA, British East Africa, June 12.—A messenger arrived to-day with the news that the Roosevelt hunting party experienced great hardships in its trip to the Lumbwa big elephant district. The messenger came in to order two fresh horses dispatched to the party at once, as several of the horses with which the caravan set out were incapacitated.

The runner who arrived to-day left the party Wednesday morning, when Colonel Roosevelt and the others were still toiling through the arid regions between here and Sotik. The journey was unexpectedly slow, and the messenger says that Mr. Roosevelt did not expect to go into camp until Friday.

The arrival of the messenger furnished the only scrap of news from the Roosevelt party since it left Kijabo a week ago to-day.

PRESIDENT'S WIFE IS GAINING SLOWLY

WASHINGTON, June 12.—Mrs. Taft, wife of the President, who suffered a severe nervous attack several weeks ago, does not improve as rapidly as her friends could wish. She still remains in her room, and her case is proving more stubborn than was at first expected.

Mrs. Taft had been urged to give up Washington and go away for the season without delay, but she does not wish to do so. Worried over her responsibilities as head of the White House, when she is not able to give them personal attention, is said to be the chief reason why her recuperation is slow.

REVERE LIQUOR CASES IN COURT

In Chelsea Police Court to-day William Paine, No. 584 Ocean avenue, Revere, pleaded not guilty to selling liquor in that town. His case was continued until June 21. Henry S. Hawes of Whitrock avenue, Beachmont, was sentenced to three months in the House of Correction because of inability to pay a fine of $50 for the illegal sale of liquor. He appealed and was held in $400. Martin Rizzio of No. 265 Revere street pleaded guilty to selling liquor. His case was continued to June 18.

CANDIDATES' STANDING WILL BE GIVEN IN THE SUNDAY AMERICAN

The Race Around the World Contest for the school children of New England ends on Saturday, June 26. Only twelve days remain before the lists are finally closed and the final count taken which will decide the four boys who will go whirling around the world; the four girls who will tour Europe and the fifty boys and girls who will go on a sight-seeing tour of New York, Washington and Niagara Falls. Each of the winners will have the privilege of selecting his or her own escort or chaperone.

Study the standing of the candidates as it will appear in the BOSTON AMERICAN to-morrow. See if there is not in that list of boys and girls, some one that you know, the son or daughter of some one of your friends, the son or daughter of some of your relatives.

Pick out your favorite, then help them by subscribing to the BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN.

Every reader of the BOSTON AMERICAN ought to help some deserving boy or girl. They can aid them tremendously by subscribing and by getting their friends to subscribe. Each yearly subscription has a vote value of between 2,500 and 5,000, according to residence of the subscriber. You can subscribe either to the AMERICAN direct or through your favorite in the race.

The standing of the candidates when the final rush of voting begins is vitally important. A position in the Roll of Honor is important. There will be only one more publication of the standing and the Roll of Honor after to-morrow—on June 20. All votes to be included in the above standing must be in the office by Wednesday, June 16, at 6 p. m.

Help your favorite TO-DAY. This is the home stretch of the great race. It should prove a pleasure to you to help some worthy, deserving boy or girl to win. Victory for them will mean a great start in the RIGHT path of life.

JORDAN ALIENISTS EXAMINE MURPHY

John Murphy, the Somerville hog header who ran amuck in the plant of the North Provision & Packing Company and killed five men and wounded three others, was examined in his cell in the East Cambridge jail to-day by Drs. Philip Coombs Knapp and Henry C. Baldwin, who were appointed by Judge Lawton to decide as to Murphy's sanity. The report of the commission will be made to the court Monday. Both doctors were government alienists in the Jordan trial.

ARGUE RETRIAL JUNE 19.

Arguments for a retrial in the cases of Warry Charles and Joe Guey, Boston Chinamen convicted of murder in connection with the shooting up of Chinatown, have been postponed until next Saturday. Five other Chinamen are waiting to be sentenced, three have been granted new trials and one has had his case nol prossed.

SAVE 35 AS SHIP ON FIRE GOES DOWN

PHILADELPHIA, June 12.—The steamer Shearwater of the Van Sciver line, Philadelphia to Mt. Holly and other Delaware River ports, caught fire at the Arch street wharf to-day and sunk. Thirty-five persons were taken off before the vessel went down. It was formerly used by naval reserves of Pennsylvania.

100 IN PERIL ON TRAIN IN CRASH

PATCHOGUE, L. I., June 12.—Nearly 100 commuters narrowly escaped death or serious injury to-day when a passenger train on the Long Island road crashed into a freight train at the river crossing. The engine of the passenger was overturned and the caboose of the freight train was smashed. Several of the passengers were bruised.

410 RESCUED ON WRECKED CUNARD SHIP

HORTA, Fayal (Azores), June 12.—Details of the loss of the Cunard line steamer Slavonia, off Flores Islands, were received here to-day. The steamer, which was wrecked yesterday, grounded two miles off the coast. There has been no loss of life. The 110 first-class passengers on board were transferred safely to the steamer Prinzessin Irene of the North Geramn Lloyd line, and will be taken by this vessel to Gibraltar. The 300 other passengers, it is said here, together with the crew, were landed at Velas, on Flores Island.

NEW YORK, June 12.—Additional details of the stranding of the Cunard liner Slavonia off the Island of Flores in the Azores reached the local office of the steamship company to-day. Although the dispatch from Captain Peterson of the North German Lloyd liner Prinzess Irene told of the safety of the 410 passengers, no mention was made of the officers and crew of the vessel who numbered all told about 200 men.

A meagre message was received from Captain Dunning of the Slavonia at the head office of the Cunard line in Liverpool and relayed to the office here to-day. It contained the news already received, but told nothing of the crew. It read as follows:

"Slavonia ashore south side Flores Island. Passengers safely landed. Proceeding; saloon on Prinzessin Irene; third class on Batavia. Vessel in bad position."

What was meant by the phrase "passengers safely landed" was not clear to the agents until the dispatch from Horta was received, showing that passengers and crew were safe.

BOSTON WOMAN IN TALK ON TRUANTS

BUFFALO, June 12.—The delegates to the Conference of Charities and Corrections have chosen St. Louis as the place for holding next year's conference. To-day's program included a paper by Mary Boyle O'Reilly of Boston on "Children Truants."

GIRL LEADS 18 FROM FLAMES

When fire broke out to-day on the third floor of the five-story brick building, No. 379 Harrison avenue, corner of Way street, pretty Mary Cutler, eighteen years of age, of No. 281 Chelsea street, Everett, saved eighteen other girls from panic and probable injury by marshalling them into line and leading them through the smoke-choked hall and stairs to the stret.

Mary Cutler, formerly attended the Bowdoin Public School, and while there learned the fire drill. She and the other girls, ranging from fifteen to eighteen years, are all employed on the fourth floor of the building by Massachusetts Dress Suit Case Company. Wise Brothers operate a similar concern on the floor below.

Shortly before noon fire broke out in paper and packing in Wise Brothers' place, and the smoke rose in blinding clouds to the floor above, badly scaring the girls employed there. While Horace Levitt of No. 27 Rochester street was fighting the flames on the third floor, Mary Cutler marshalled the scared girls into line.

"Do exactly as you see me do and mind what I tell you, and you're in no danger at all," she told the girls. This one cool-[illegible] was obeyed. "Get into line now and follow me," she called out, [illegible] tramped down through the smoky halls and stairs to the street.

Young Levitt made a game fight to subdue the flames, but the smoke got so dense that he was compelled to seek safety in flight down the fire escape. The damage was nominal.

SOLDIERS FIELD, June 12.—The Harvard and Cornell nines met for the second time to-day, the Crimson winning the first battle at Ithaca last month.

The Cornell men were out for revenge for the trimming handed them by the Crimson squad at Ithaca, and with Caldwell pitching they expected to even up matters to-day. Caldwell is Cornell's star box artist and his record is much better than that of Howes, who twirled in the former game.

Hicks was sent to the box for the Harvard team, and Crocker was substituted for MacLaughlin at second, the regular sacker being on the crippled list. Crocker has been showing well in practice and it is not believed MacLaughlin's absence will be felt to any extent.

PICKS KETCHEL TO BEAT JOHNSON

ELPASO, Tex., June 12.—Battling Nelson passed through here to-day on his way to Oklahoma City, where he is billed to box Jack Clifford on June 22. The Battler seemed greatly interested over Ketchel's easy victory over O'Brien and declared that the Michigan fighter would find Johnson just as soft.

"When he and Johnson get together there will be a repetition of my fight with Gans," said Nelson, "a chocolate will drop. Stanley Ketchel will batter down Johnson in less than ten rounds. I will be at the ring side and anybody that wants can have $10,000 worth of my money that Ketchel wins."

LECTURES ON IRELAND.

A new illustrated lecture on "The Scenery of Ireland" will be delivered by John O'Callaghan in St. Augustine's Hall, South Boston, under the auspices of Division 6, A. O. H., Sunday evening, June 27.

WEST SIDE GROUNDS, Chicago, June 12.—Rain to-day threatened to interfere with the second game of the series between the Boston Doves and the Chicago Cubs this afternoon. Rain fell throughout the morning. Not hard at any time, but just a constant drizzle.

Both teams prepared for action just the same, for not enough water fell to injure the diamond, while if the sun came out at any moment the playinfi geld would be in fine condition. So the game was still held on.

Acting Manager Bill Dahlen had Tuckey groomed for action to-day. This young side-wheeler is best remembered in these parts for the great fifteen-inning game he pitched against Mordecia Brown on the last trip of the Doves last Fall. He won that game 4 to 2, and has been a tough proposition for the Cubs ever since.

Manager Chance had not decided between Reulbach and Brown. It looked as if the former would go on the slab in this afternoon's game, while Brown would be saved to face Ferguson in to-morrow's contest.

Manager Dahlen determined to send the same line-up into the game that won the opener by the score of 4 to 2. It was the second victory for the Doves in twenty-one games, but if they played every day as they did yesterday, how they could lose that number is a mystery. They hit in splendid form, and Autrey, while not credited with a single, hit the ball hard but without luck. Dahlen shook up his line-up before the first game. He placed Autrey, secured from the Cincinnati Reds, via the waiver route, on first. Starr performed at second. Both played excellent fielding games.

AUTOS READY TO SET MARK IN HILL CLIMB

By J. C. KERRISON.

WORCESTER, June 12.—The motorists seem to have taken entire possession of this city preparatory to the great contest to be waged on Dead Horse Hill this afternoon. From every point of the compass the spectators came rolling into the heart of the Commonwealth in their motor vehicles, many of which had covered 100 miles since morning, just for the sake of witnessing the daring, dare-devil driving of the noted operators up the one-mile hill with a grade of from 5 to 18 per cent.

Conspicuous among the visiting clubs was the Lowell aggregation, which had for its special guest the policeman Mayor of the city, who has become decidedly interested in all that pertains to motor vehicles, especially so since it became possible for Lowell to hold the national light car championships next Labor Day. Mayor Brown was the special guest of President John Heinze of the Lowell Club ,and he seemed to enjoy the trip and experiences immensely.

The cars and visitors lost little time in the city proper, going to the hill where many of the cars were practising. D. Bruce Brown, who broke the rear axle of his Benze while endeavoring to avert an accident early last evening, has secured a new axle and is working on the same with the expressed determination of having the car in shape in season to take his place in the list.

Brown was considered the most dangerous of the gas cars, and he was pretty generally picked to win, and incidentally break the record for the course. Grant in the Alco has, however, shown better than record up the hill, and there are many who believe that his six-cylinder will do equally as well as the Benze, which has made a pretty clean sweep through the country. It is sincerely hoped that the Benze will be ready to try conclusion with the Alco and others.

The course is in the best condition possible, and records will surely go by the board.

AUTO IN HILL CLIMB HURLED INTO DITCH

WORCESTER, June 12.—Billy Bourque, driver of the Knox car entered in the hill climb this afternoon, tried to drive his car up the Dead Horse Hill in a practice performance to-day, but struck a bend and skidded off the road into a ditch. The car turned completely over. Bourque sustained scratches and cuts all over his head, face and body. The car was badly smashed and could not enter the race. The Benz people declare that they could not get their car, injured in the accident on Friday, ready in time for the climb this afternoon.

MAIL ROBBERS FIGHT, BUT ARE CONQUERED

ROCHESTER, June 12.—When fast mail train No. 21 of the New York Central Railroad reached here early to-day five men, believed to have entered an express car for the purpose of robbing it, were arrested by a squad of twenty policemen and a score of express company employes.

The men put up a game fight, but were finally forced to give in, and were taken to the station house, where they declared that they did not board the train for the purpose of robbery.

FARMER, 86, SLAYS MAN, 87; KILLS SELF

SCRANTON, Pa., June 12.—A murder and suicide, remarkable because of the great age of the two principals, occurred on a farm near Honesdale, about twenty-five miles from here. George Baker, a farmer, aged eighty-seven years, was murdered, presumably with a shotgun, by his brother-in-law, Mark Van Duzen, aged eighty-six years. After leaving Baker dead in the barn, Van Duzen returned to the farm house and informed Mrs. Baker what he had done. Before the aged woman could summon neighbors, Van Duzen hurried out of the house and shot himself dead.

SCHARFF IS TECH PRESIDENT'S AIDE

Announcement was made by the Technology Corporation to-day of the choice of Maurice Roos Scharff '09 to the office of president's assistant. The duties are somewhat higher than those of the ordinary secretary, for besides being President Maclaurin's right-hand man Mr. Scharff takes charge of all the minor duties of president. He succeeds Harry Andrew Rapelye '08, who leaves the institute to take an engineering position of trust. Harold Pender will fill the professorship left vacant by the transfer of Professor Clifford to Harvard, that of theoretical and applied electricity.

PRETTY WORCESTER GIRL ARTIST NAMED AS RIVAL IN SUIT

Miss Clara Wheeler.

Society of Worcester and other western Massachusetts cities is to-day eagerly discussing the suit for divorce which has just been brought by Mrs. Joseph A. Jones of Brooklyn, against her husband, the proprietor of a garage at Jamaica, L. I. Mrs. Jones, in her suit, names Miss Clara Wheeler, a pretty and accomplished artist of Worcester, as corespondent.

Among the many sensational exhibits are several sketches, each bearing a humorous note, which, it is alleged, were written by the pretty Worcester girl to Jones during the Winter of 1906.

One of the sketches bears the avowal: "I want to be loved. Meet me at the lake after dark." It is signed "Your ownest Valentine."

Jones, it is declared, met the fascinating young artist on a New York, New Haven & Hartford train and it "was a case of love at first sight." Testimony as to a pair of "loud check" trousers which Jones is said to have worn will be used in the divorce proceedings to prove his wife's contentions.

According to one of the affidavits in the case, Miss Wheeler, after having won the heart of the Brooklyn automobile man, was accepting attentions from another when Jones ran across them in Fifth avenue, New York, and a scene followed that Jones feared would call for the attention of the Gotham police.

"In January, 1902," says Mrs. Jones in her complaint, "my husband went to Worcester on business, and some two months later I followed. We stayed there until the Fall of 1906, residing at the Aurora Hotel, when we returned to Brooklyn.

"About a month after our return I noticed that my husband was irritable, at times despondent. He ignored me as much as he could, and his treatment convinced me that he had grown weary of me. I finally asked him for an explanation of his conduct, telling him I thought some woman had come between us.

"He admitted that he loved another woman deeply; that he could not give her up, and that he would support me if I would leave the city and trouble him no longer. He said he had not loved me for three years. I immediately left the house and have not seen my husband since."

100 KILLED BY SHOCKS; GALE ADDS TERROR

PARIS, June 12.—Official reports up to noon from the south of France say that twenty-two are known to be dead as a result of two earthquake shocks last night. It is believed the death list will total at least 100. At St. Chamas thirty houses were destroyed.

A terrific rainstorm and gale followed the shock. Hundreds are homeless and the storm rigors added to their sufferings.

At Lambesc eight persons were killed. The property loss was heavy in many cities. The earthquake spread from the Riviera up as far as Avignon. It lasted several seconds. At Toulon the first shock took place shortly after 9 o'clock. It was followed two minutes later by a second shock, which caused damage, notably in the Avenue Vauba. The inhabitants of the old quarters of the town, surprised in their sleep, jumped from their beds and rushed into the streets in the night clothes.

At Marseilles at the same hour the shock which took place lasted for four seconds. The people rushed out of the cafes in large numbers, terrified and assembled in the public squares.

The clocks on the Bourse were stopped. The shock was violent in the upper parts of the town, especially in La Plaine and the Vauban quarter.

At Montpellier the shock was so severe that hundreds rushed from houses and spent the night in the streets.

At Aux-en-Provence the shock lasted ten seconds. The electric lamps on the promenade and in the cafes were extinguished.

The village of Eguilles, which is situated 10 kilometres from Aix, suffered severely. Several houses collapsed and the village is partly destroyed.

Dispatches from Marseilles state that troops were hurried to Lambesc to search in the debris for possible dead or injured persons.

Seven small villages near St. Garmate were destroyed by the earthquake. Fugitives arriving at St. Garmate brought this news to-day.

ACQUITS WOMAN OF STEALING GOODS

Mrs. Elizabeth Brown of No. 36 Westland avenue, charged with larceny of tablecloths, linen and lace from Miss Sarah Fowler of Massachusetts avenue, was found not guilty to-day in the Brookline Municipal Court. Mrs. Brown was found guilty of assaulting Mrs. Mary K. McGarr of Summit avenue, Brookline, and was fined $5. She appealed. Mrs. McGarr claims that when she ordered Mrs. Brown to leave her lodging house she was pushed by Mrs. Brown.

BODY OF HALE IS TO LIE IN STATE SUNDAY

The body of Rev. Dr. Edward Everett Hale will lie in state at the South Congregational Church, Exeter and Newbury streets, from 10:30 a. m. until 1 p. m. to-morrow.

There will be two church services in his memory. The first will be at the South Congregational Church for the members of the family, immediate friends and representatives of the various institutions and societies in which Dr. Hale was interested. The officiating clergymen will be Rev. Edward Cummings, Rev. James de Normandie and Rev. Charles G. Ames.

Services to which the public are invited will be conducted at the Park Street Church in the afternoon. Short addresses will be given by Rev. A. Z. Conrad, pastor of the Park Street Church; Rev. George Hodges, dean of the Cambridge Theological School (Episcopal); Rev. Charles F. Dole, pastor of the First Congregational Society (Unitarian), Jamaica Plain, and Rev. Francis H. Rowley, pastor of the First Baptist Church, Boston.

It is understood that at the private services there will be no eulogy spoken, and the tributes will be as simple as they are sincere. The body will remain at the Hale residence until 9 to-morrow morning. At the close of the South Congregational Church services it will be taken to Forest Hills Cemetery for interment. The burial will be private.

Resolutions were adopted by the Massachusetts Society of the Sons of the American Revolution on the death of Rev. Edward Everett Hale. It was voted that the society offer the family its deepest sympathy. The resolutions were signed by Charles D. Burrage, president, and Herbert M. Leland, secretary.

STEEL RIBBED CORSET SAVES WOMAN'S LIFE

CHICAGO, June 12.—Dr. Jennie A. Beardsley is the latest victim of a black hand plot in Chicago. She was stabbed twice as she answered a knock at the back door of her home at No. 6508 Peoria street. Two detectives were hiding in the house to guard the woman, but it was a steel ribbed corset that saved her life. The would-be assassin escaped in the darkness.

WELLMAN TO FLY TO NORTH POLE

SPITZBERGEN, June 12.—Walter Wellman's ship, the Arctic, carrying the advance guard of the expedition which will aid Wellman in his third attempt to reach the North Pole in a balloon this Summer, has arrived here. The frame and mechanical parts of Mr. Wellman's balloon are in Rotterdam, whence they will be shipped to Tromsoe. The expedition this time is under the sole ownership and direction of Mr. Wellman, who has behind him capital subscribed by Americans interested in the plan on patriotic and scientific grounds.

FILE EXCEPTIONS IN GRAFT CASES

Exceptions were filed to-day with Clerk Manning of the Superior Criminal Court in the cases of Leo F. McCullough and Lawyer James T. Cassidy, in which the defendants, through their counsel, ask for a new trial on the grounds that witnesses were allowed to testify in the presence of each other in the grand jury room and because of the refusal of the court to make certain rulings as requested by lawyers for the defence.

WOMAN GAINS 60 POUNDS AND DIES

UTICA, June 12.—Mrs. Leroy Hoke of East Springfield, near here, was taken sick two weeks ago and died of excessive fleshiness. She weighed 406 pounds at death, having gained sixty pounds during her illness. A special coffin had to be made, and this was so large it was impossible to use a hearse in carrying her to the cemetery.

MAY CAUSE SMOKERS TO SHUN EXPOSITION

SEATTLE, WASH., June 12.—According to the Attorney-General, you are liable to fine and imprisonment for even having in possession cigarettes in the State of Washington, under the anti-cigarette law just in effect. It is expected to cause a great deal of trouble to visitors at the Seattle Exposition.

SPRECKELS IS TOO WEALTHY TO MARRY!

CHICAGO, June 12.—Claus Spreckels, son of John D. Spreckels, who did not marry Adele Cass, says he is among the "too rich." Said the heir of the sugar millions:

"I shall do as father wishes. He said he'd rather have me be a sugar king than a chorus man, so he told me not to get married.

"There are two classes of unfortunates in this world who cannot afford to marry young. They are those who are either too rich or too poor. I happen to be in the former class, but might as well be in the latter. They are equally unfortunate.

"There is said to be so much in store for me in this life that I am trying to begin to choose what I may best enjoy. Hence I must obscure myself in the branches of the family tree and wait until I am mature enough to start one of my own. For the other class there is so little to enjoy that the wise ones say they must save until they are older. They will enjoy it more.

"I have so much money that I cannot afford to get married. If I had to get married in order to eat it would be different. But I have too much of life before me. No, I never was engaged to Miss Cass and may never be. I met her while we were both staying with Frank King Clark of Paris.

"I knew her only in a friendly way, simply admired her, that's all. She became entangled in a lawsuit of some kind in Paris, and had to leave sooner than she expected. I was coming home in two weeks anyway, and so I offered to come with her and see her safely on this side of the ocean.

"You see, father had heard of my intended engagement to sing in The Hague and Paris, and I guess he thought that I was going to turn chorus girl. Anyway he flashed the 'C. Q. D.' Said that the sugar business needed me here."

MISS COGHLAN PICKS WINNERS IN CONTEST

Miss Rosalind Coghlan, leading woman of "The Traveling Salesman" company, playing at the Park Theatre, picked the winners in the "love at first sight" contest at the office of the BOSTON AMERICAN to-day.

She went over the baskets full of letters which were received in the contest and picked out the fifty winners, whose names will be announced in the SUNDAY AMERICAN. It was quite a task, the selection of fifty from the immense bunch of letters sent by contestants. Moreover, there were so many articles of almost equal merit that the problem was a serious one.

"I don't like to disappoint people," said the clever daughter of the famous Rose Coghlan. "I'd like to give a prize to everybody. Why not?"

But of course that was out of the question, so Miss Coghlan had to confine her generosity to fifty.

Miss Coghlan knows something about "love at first sight" herself, for she has been playing one side of such an episode for a long time in "The Traveling Salesman," in which "love at sight" is the keynote. And the way she plays it leaves no room for doubt that she believes in it, so sincere is her portrayal of the heroine in "The Traveling Salesman."

The writer of the best article on "love at first sight" in the BOSTON AMERICAN contest will receive $25 in gold; the second $15 and the third $10. The writers of the ten next best articles will be awarded, each, a box for a performance of "The Traveling Salesman," and each of the writers of the thirty-seven next best articles will be given two reserved seat tickets for "The Traveling Salesman."

RETURN 107 INDICTMENTS

The June Suffolk County Grand Jury to-day reported 107 indictments, 26 no bills and 10 secret indictments.

Five bills were returned against members of the Hunchakist Society, who figured in a riot and shooting during a meeting three months ago in Brighton. Kerigan Bargaglan, Manoog Deer Hoohanisian and J. Bonianla were indicted for assault with intent to murder and two others of the band for assault and battery.

Carmino Cavesseta, a barber, was indicted for arson at No. 41 Howard street, a no bill being returned in the case of Antonio Caruso, owner of the barber shop.

James C. Goldman was indicted on fourteen counts for larceny from the Exchange Trust Company. It is alleged that Goldman obtained letters of credit from the Exchange Trust Company, went abroad and converted the letters of credit into cash and purchased stock for himself.

Indictments for forgery were returned against Thomas H. Woolman, Edward Cefrey and E. C. Cook, it being alleged that Woodman forged and uttered checks, using his father's name.

WOMAN CHARGES MAN JUGGLED $1,800

Charged with obtaining $1,800 under false pretences from Charlotte M. Chapman, No. 142 Boulevard, Revere, Charles W. Rice of No. 155 Western avenue, Brighton, was held in $4,000 for a hearing, June 22, in the Municipal Court to-day. Mrs. Chapman alleges that she gave Rice the money to invest, and that he failed to use the money as agreed.

O'CONNELL TO BE CARDINAL?

Americans in Rome who follow events at the Vatican believe that Archbishop William H. O'Connell of Boston will be the next American cardinal appointed. Archbishop O'Connell scored a decided triumph at the banquet in connection with the American College's golden jubilee when the guests drank to the "Prosperity of America, the powerful country where the church enjoys complete freedom." He delivered a remarkable speech, showing a thorough knowledge of the language of the Roman curia. The other speeches were all in English. The cardinals present and also several leading members of the Pope's immediate entourage, who were at the banquet, were impressed favorably and repeatedly congratulated the Archbishop.

RANDOLPH ENTRIES FOR COUNTRY CLUB

P. S. P. Randolph of Philadelphia has entered a number of horses in the Country Club flat events. Mr. Randolph has not been represented at Brookline for a number of years. He will be remembered as the owner of the successful Miss Clay when pony racing was far more popular. Mr. Randolph has several horses in for the race for three-year-olds and upward, including Ruble, Miss Randolph and Black Oak. He will also start Melbourne Nominee in the mile event for four-year-olds and upward on June 17.

AGAIN FIGHT TO SAVE TOWN FROM FLAMES

PORTLAND, Me., June 12.—A dispatch received here says that the town of Presque Isle, which suffered a heavy loss by fire on Monday, is again seriously threatened by forest fires, and all the able-bodied men of the town are laboring to keep the flames from the village.

Early to-day the town was completely cut off from telephone or telegraphic communication.

A despatch from Richibucto, Kent County, states that three houses have been burned at St. Margaret's, and that the village of Kouchibonguac is in great danger. No rain has fallen since May 10, and the province is practically girdled by flame.

A despatch from Smyrna Mills says:

Two villages have been wiped out and scores of lives imperilled by the forest fires which have been raging in Canadian and Maine boundary towns for several days. Fifty refugees, saved from death in the flames which destroyed the hamlet of Hillmans, seven miles from this place, are being cared for in the homes of people here.

Saved by Special Train.

The refugees were rescued from an awful death by the arrival of a special train rushed from Houlton. Every house in the village had been destroyed and the roof of the railroad station in which the inhabitants had taken refuge was afire when the train arrived. The refugees were placed aboard the cars in record time and the train raced away at full speed over burning ties.

At Campbellton, N. B., a short distance across the boundary, are ninety persons saved from death in the village of Gouillard and Guimont Mills. A special train carried them away as the flames were devouring their homes.

Fire Line Twenty Miles.

For several days flames have extended along the line for twenty miles in northern Aroostook. The width of the fire zone is about five miles. Although the territory represents about 100 square miles, the entire block has not been burned over, as large sections have been jumped, and the main conflagration has divided into several sections.

The refugees at Campbellton, N. B., make up the entire population of Gouillard and Guimont's Mills. Few of the party of men, women and children saved anything except the clothes they wore and some were thinly clad.

THE SUMMER SCARF GIRL.

How old fashions have been turned in new and bewitching ways is described in the SUNDAY AMERICAN.

"CRANBERRY KING" NOW HAS A "QUEEN"

PROVIDENCE, June 12.—One of the most stylish couples coming to the Pawtucket marriage license bureau in a long time from outside of the State was Bert Wilmond Flanders of Wareham street, Middleboro, Mass., and Miss Luella Baesiger of No. 649 Prairie avenue, Chicago. The groom is known as the "cranberry king."

It was easy sailing for the sweethearts, for soon after the license was issued they reached the Congregational Church at Central Falls, just over the bridge from Pawtucket, and were married by Rev. Dr. Lyon.

FREE RHEUMATISM CURE

A Home Cure Will Be Given FREE by One Who Had It.

In the Spring of 1893 I was attacked by Muscular and Inflammatory Rheumatism. I suffered as only those who have it know, for over three years. I tried remedy after remedy, and doctor after doctor, but such relief as I received was only temporary. Finally I found a remedy that cured me completely, and it has never returned. I have given it to a number who were terribly afflicted and even bed ridden with Rheumatism, and it effected a cure in every case.

I will send a free trial of this precious remedy by mail, postpaid to any sufferer who writes for it. Just fill out the coupon below and mail it to me to-day.

The Seventh Day Wonder of New England

Plan Vigorous Attack on Roll of Honor

★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★

Final Rush Starts in Big Tour Contest

American Readers Select Favorites in Voting for Great Travel Prizes.

Two World Tour leaders and hustling father of another.

SELECT your favorite in the Race Around the World contest to-day, either boy or girl, and then get busy. The BOSTON AMERICAN is offering some great prizes to the school children of New England and it is possible that among that list of several hundred boy and girl contestants there may be the son or daughter of one of your relatives or friends. There may be some boy or girl you are acquainted with who may be particularly deserving of the rich travel prizes offered and you can be of tremendous assistance to them.

Subscriptions are what count. You can subscribe for them. You can have your friends subscribe for them. You can give them a good start up the ladder. You give them a good start in life, if your subscription helps them win. Each yearly subscription to the BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN means between 2,500 and 5,000 votes to your favorite candidate and no matter what his or her standing in the race, if you will interest yourself sufficiently. YOU can be the means of making that candidate reach the topmost rung of the ladder, or at least you can make your candidate reach the ROLL OF HONOR.

One More Roll of Honor.

The ROLL OF HONOR contains the names of the twenty-nine leading boys and girls, as there are fifty-eight prizes. The ROLL OF HONOR will be printed to-morrow, then there will be another on Sunday, June 20, which will be the last until the list of winners is published.

Study that list to-morrow and see if your candidate or any of your acquaintances are in that list. If they are not in it, put them there. Any changes are possible in the course of a day's balloting and the candidates are so closely grouped that a single or more subscriptions will serve to put a contestant well above the heads of many of his or her rivals.

In order to get into that next ROLL OF HONOR it is imperative that all subscriptions be in the BOSTON AMERICAN office by 6 p. m. Wednesday. The lists will close temporarily at that time to permit the preparation of the lists for publication on Sunday, June 20. Indications point to a grand attack on that roll from all sides.

It will be a feather in the cap of any candidate to be in the last ROLL OF HONOR. It is worth a special effort, not alone on the part of the candidates, but also on the part of all of the friends of the candidates, on the part of all of their friends.

Now for a Mighty Spurt.

Now for a mighty spurt to get into that final ROLL OF HONOR. All of you are capable of a spurt. Prove yourself possessed of the true New England spirit. Prove your pluck. Prove your energy. The magnificent tour prizes are well worth the effort.

The boys and girls that win the great travel prizes will return home little men and little women. They will learn to lean upon themselves. Through strange lands, among strange peoples, fighting against the double handicap of ignorance of languages and customs, the boys and girls will develop amazingly.

They may be boys and girls in starting away from their New England homes, with nothing in their minds but the thought of the frolic that the trip seems to them. But it will be as little men and little women that they will return home—with the independence and ambitions of men and women. They will have higher, deeper thoughts, higher ambitions, and their eyes will see the future along a different plane. There won't be one of them that will not return with higher ideals and finer resolutions. Better still, they will learn from actual observation just what AMERICA and AMERICANS mean to the world.

Great American Trips.

The American sight-seeing trips—those rich consolation prizes, like the foreign tours, will prove tremendously beneficial to the winners. It falls to the lot of few boys and girls, indeed, to travel in such style, and with such close observation of detail as the twenty-five boys and twenty-five girls will tour to New York, Washington and Niagara Falls.

All of the winners will have the privilege of selecting their own escort or chaperone, and the BOSTON AMERICAN will pay all of the expenses of both. The girls will have the privilege of choosing an adult female escort, while the boys will be permitted to pick a male adult to accompany them. In either case, the escort selected must be thoroughly acceptable to the parents of the candidates and to the BOSTON AMERICAN.

Sailors Honor Candidate.

As an evidence of the genuine outside interest that is being displayed in the contest, comes a letter from F. A. Miller, of the U. S. S. Missouri. The letter declares that the sailors of the battleship are going to give a subscription ball in honor of Ida M. Rumrill, and that the ball will be a duplicate of the affair which was held just before the Missouri started on the trip around the world. Those in charge of the arrangements are Messrs. Miller, Bagby, Bray, McKerrell, Nagler, Alterson, Sullivan, Swimelar, Buggie and O'Neil. The affair will be held at Odd Fellows' Hall, Charlestown, on Wednesday, June 23.

Roxbury's candidate, Lillian M. Ray of No. 1 Sumner place, will be the heroine at a grand social dance on Wednesday evening, June 23, at People's Hall, 1171 Tremont street. In addition to being Roxbury's candidate, Miss Ray is the favorite of the Boston Elevated Railway employes, who have helped to give her a prominent position in the race.

Jessie Sutcliffe Climbs.

The Scottish Clans turned out in force last evening to assist Jessie E. Sutcliffe, who was tendered a grand testimonial dance at Clan-Na-Gael Hall. There was a varied program of dancing, the feature of which was an exhibition of international dances by Miss Sutcliffe. The affair was a success, and Miss Sutcliffe promises a surprise when the ROLL OF HONOR is published on June 20.

Another girl candidate who promises to be one of the dark horses in the competition is Eldeine M. Young. She is the candidate of Atlantic's business men. An appeal has just been issued in circular form to all of the residents of Atlantic, appealing to pride and loyalty to their community, asking them to support Miss Young. The appeal is signed by Messrs. Fred Burditt, superintendent of Sunday schools; G. A. Sullivan, B. H. Paquett, W. G. Young, C. E. Carlson, W. G. Geekie, Van Emden, Kendall and J. Morrison.

HOLD ELECTION FRIDAY.

The annual election of the Young Men's Catholic Association of Boston will take place next Friday, between 4 and 10 o'clock p. m. The nominating committee presents the following candidates for directors: J. Edward Conners, William J. Magee, Charles F. Mahoney, Dr. Frederick A. Stiles, Hugh H. Collins, Timothy A. Dugan, Charles W. O'Kelley, Adelard Phaneuf. Four candidates receiving the highest number of votes will be declared elected.

MRS. RUIZ HAD STARVED SELF BEFORE DEATH

LONDON, June 12.—Further and curious details in the mystery of the last days and death of Mrs. Mary Agnes Ruiz, who committed suicide on May 16—while the tragedy was concealed until two days ago—were learned to-day.

The house in which Mrs. Ruiz committed the fatal act, No. 19 Grosvenor street, was rented from Grogan & Boyd, real estate agents, who have an office in Piccadilly, opposite Gloucester House, where Alfred G. Vanderbilt has palatial apartments. The renting was done by C. F. Williamson of Paris, acting for parties unknown.

The street is one of the most fashionable in Mayfair, her near neighbors being Lords Abercromby and Fitzroy, Spencer Churchill, Cavendish Bentinck, the Dowager Duchess of Roxburghe, the Earl of Aberdeen, Viscount Coke, Lady Templemore and others.

After May 1 Mrs. Ruiz became despondent and ceased riding in the park. She remained in the house ten days prior to her death, and refused all food. To allay the servants' suspicions a physician was called in twice, but Mrs. Ruiz refused to take medicine. On the fatal Sunday morning Mrs. Ruiz declared she intended to remain in bed. When her French maid went to her Mrs. Ruiz asked:

"How do I look this morning?"

The maid answered, "Splendid, madame."

To this Mrs. Ruiz retorted:

"I am not looking for sympathy, and if I was I wouldn't get it here."

So far as is known these were her last words. Mrs. Ruiz then dismissed her personal attendants for the day, which suggests premeditation of suicide.

The Ruiz bedroom is at the back of the house, and in the afternoon Miss Caney, form her adjoining room, heard a shot. Rushing in she found Mrs. Ruiz wounded. She called the butler and pledging him to secrecy, sent for Doctor Bland Sutton, a fashionable physician of the highest reputation. The eminent physician was reluctant to attend, but was prevailed on through the seriousness of the case. The butler then procured a big blanket and, wrapped in this, Mrs. Ruiz was rushed to a hospital.

SCARED BURGLAR DIVES OUT WINDOW

WOONSOCKET, R. I., June 12.—Miss Marion Aldrich, who lives near the historic Ye Arnold Inn at Union Village, had a caller early to-day who left a badly frightened young woman behind when he unceremoniously dived from a window. Miss Aldrich awoke to find a man standing beside her bed. She feigned sleep. The burglar got some change from a small purse and was about to take some jewelry and other valuable articles when Miss Aldrich screamed. The burglar dove through the window. It is believed the same man entered the homes of Attorney Everett L. Walling of Providence and Assistant Health Officer Thomas Holland, near by. From Attorney Walling's he took a bottle of brandy and four cigars. He got nothing at Holland's. Unsuccessful attempts were made to enter the homes of Dr. A. M. Paine, Howard F. Burdick, H. M. Fillebrown and Charles W. Paine.

POLITICIAN BROKE; JAIL FOR JOY RIDE

Charged with drunkenness and evading a taxicab fare, William H. Curley, a well-known Ward 19 politician, was fined $10 on the drunkenness charge and $30 for attempting to evade his automobile bill, in the police court. Curley with several friends spent Thursday evening in joy-riding around Boston and then ordered the chauffeur to go to Nantasket Beach, as he wanted some salt air. Owing to the fact that the meter already registered more than $18, the chauffeur became wary and drove Curley to the garage, whence the manager accompanied the cab to the police station.

To Children:

Isn't it glorious that there is one great soda fountain drink with a spotless reputation? HIRES is healthful. It's a drink—not a drug. In the language of a famous President, "It's simply bully."

The dreadful things which are being offered to the children of the country from soda fountains have stirred another famous Washington investigator to activity.

Before the American Philosophical Society, the other day, he stated that the existence of cocaine and caffeine, as well as cocoa leaf extract, was shown in drinks dispensed at the soda fountains of every city in the country.

"This problem," he said "of the use of these habit-forming drugs by the school children, the young girls who get a 'soft drink,' as millions of them do, is, in my opinion, one which will soon be regarded as no less serious than the alcohol question."

This is not the soda fountain man's fault. He doesn't put the drug in—it is done before it comes to him. He wants to give you the best he can.

It is a comfort to mothers and fathers—to everybody—to know that the soda fountain man can give you one summer and winter drink which is pure and health-producing, besides being a delicious, inviting drink.

The best he can possibly give you is Hires. Remember the name—and when you want Hires, say Hires.

It is made from the purest vegetable products of nature—those that aid your digestion, act as a tonic and cool your blood. There is not the trace of a drug—it is healthful all through.

The "Hires Habit" is due only to the fact that the healthful effects and the tempting taste of this great drink are well-nigh irresistible.

Rev. Paul Revere Frothingham will preach at the morning service at the Arlington Street Church on "Two Types of Noble Manhood."

"Edward Everett Hale, an Appreciation," will be the theme of Rev. Stephen Herbert Roblin at the morning service at the Columbus Avenue Universalist Church.

LEXINGTON PARK IS OPENED TO-DAY

Lexington Park opens to-morrow, its woods, groves, shaded walks, rustic seats, swings, toboggan, merry-go-round and mammoth menageries being free to the public after admission is gained at the gate. Manager Benson prides himself on having the biggest menagerie in the country, barring none, presenting 168 animals from all over the world. The bears, wildcats and monkeys are back from wintering in Havana to greet their old-time friends and receive tidbits from the hands of the children. The only charges inside the park are for the ballroom and restaurant. To-morrow's SUNDAY AMERICAN gives a free ticket of admission to the park, which may be clipped by the reader and used on Tuesday or Friday, day or evening. A day at Lexington Park means a liberal education in natural history for the young folks.

NAMED AS BOSTON AGENT CUNARD LINE

Charles Stewart of New York has been appointed Boston manager of the Cunard Steamship Company to succeed Charles P. Sumner, who takes charge of the New York office July 1. He was connected with the old American line at its New York office before the merger, but shortly after that he resigned and was appointed manager of the Atlas line, which is the West India service of the Hamburg-American line. He was also assistant to the general manager of the Hamburg-American.

STOLE 1,200 CIGARS

The police are looking for the thieves who stole 1,200 cigars from the factory of Goldsmith, Silver & Co., at No. 149 Staniford street, early to-day. The thieves used false keys.

$100,000 BAIL FUND TO FREE CLEMINSON

CHICAGO, June 12.—Attorney Edward J. Green, counsel for Dr. Haldane Cleminson, the alleged wife poisoner, to-day announced that he would apply for a writ of habeas corpus to free the accused physician and would offer $100,000 bail to gain his freedom.

"I have not decided when to file a petition," said he, "but it will be before the coroner's inquest. I shall ask my client's release on bail and will offer $100,000 bail if necessary.

The police continue gathering evidence against Dr. Cleminson and Detective Griebenow seized a number of letters which Anna Kolb, "the girl with the dreamy eyes" in the Cleminson case, had written to her brother, Max Kolb, who lives in Edgewood avenue. He hoped that the letters would give important clews and facts concerning Cleminson.

Captain Kane learned that the girl had been in the habit of writing long and confidential letters to her brother and, owing to her acquaintance with Dr. Cleminson, it was believed that some of these letters might contain facts about the accused physician.

Miss Kolb, of No. 12 Cilly court, has again disappeared and detectives were detailed by Captain Kane to search for her.

Kane planned a conference during the day with Dr. H. G. W. Reinhardt, the coroner's physician, to go over all the medical evidence in the case and as to the chemical analysis that is being made.

He was informed that the analysis was progressing satisfactorily and might be completed in a few days. Nothing has been found damaging to the police case, he was told.

Good Things to Eat.

Berries are beginning to be plentiful in the markets, for the first blueberries in fairly good condition may be bought for 25 cents a quart, and big blackberries looking as fresh as if picked in the suburbs, retail from 15 to 20 cents; strawberries from 15 to 25 cents a box, and they are large and luscious at that.

There are plenty of melons, and for one as large almost as a water pail, only 75 cents was asked. Others may be had for 50 cents each.

Canteloups are 10 to 15 cents each and seem to be abundant, and pineapples may be had as low as 10 cents each up to 25 cents.

Asparagus ranges all the way from 15 cents up to 50 cents a bunch for the fancy brand.

Green peas, the pods well filled and plump, bring from 60 to 75 cents a peck.

Tomatoes sell for 10 cents up to 20 cents a pound.

New potatoes are up to $1 a peck, and the old ones are 35 cents a peck.

Cherries are coming in from California in quite large quantities.

The first spring goslings are beauties. They retail for 35 cents a pound, and as the supply is limited, they sell readily.

Spring ducklings bring 27 to 28 cents a pound. Broilers, too, "fell off," as the dealers express it, but the price is 45 cents a pound, while capons are so scarce that 50 cents a pound is received for those that come to market.

Native chickens are 45 cents a pound, fowl 20 to 22 cents a pound, pigeons $2.25 to $2.50 a dozen, and squabs from $3 to $4 a dozen.

Lamb is $3.50 for hind quarters and the Southern is 16 to 20 cents a pound.

Mutton is 15 to 18 cents a pound; a loin of veal is "a shilling" a pound, and the leg 22 to 25 cents a pound.

The fish market presents a variety of sea food, including salmon at 30 cents a pound.

Striped bass are 20 cents a pound; perch are 20 cents a pound; fresh mackerel, 30 to 35 cents each. Clams from Ipswich are 50 cents a peck.

Butter and eggs remain practically unchanged. The best creamery butter is 35 cents a pound, and the strictly fresh nearby eggs 35 cents a dozen; others may be had for 30, 28 and 26 cents a dozen.

FURNISH A HOUSE FROM OLD BOXES—You can find out how to do it in the SUNDAY AMERICAN.

FREE TICKETS OPEN GATES AT WONDERLAND

The "1915" vaudeville bill at Wonderland for next week will include the Farleys, Gardiner and Golder, Eckel and Dupree, John F. Clark, Duffy, Sautelle and Duffy, and others of note, the bill being changed so that a new show is presented each week. New acts will also be presented in the minstrel production.

"The Prophet and the Princess," a seemingly adaptation of Salome is a feature, while the presentations of the Golden Graces are of never ceasing interest.

These productions, the moving pictures, funny mirrors and the park rides are all included in the SUNDAY AMERICAN free ticket plan for which the paper will to-morrow publish fourteen coupons to be used on Monday or Tuesday.

Meanwhile the twenty-for-ten plan of the park management and the 30-cent combination ticket, giving park admission and ten shows, holds the attendance to a high notch, considering the weather and time of year.

The complete list of Sunday American free tickets to be given with to-morrow's Sunday American is:

Free admission to the park; free admission to the vaudeville show; half-fare coupons, where a ticket and 5 cents give admission, to the Chutes, Hell Gate, Minstrels, Ball Room, Golden Graces and the Princess and Prophet; half-fare coupons, where a ticket and nickel give admission, to the Velvet Coaster, Merry-Go-Round, Funny House, Little Railway, "Love's Journey" and moving picture show. They are fourteen in number, representing a saving of 70 cents. Order the Sunday American to-day, cut the coupons to-morrow and use them on Monday or Tuesday, day or evening, June 14 and 15.

Drunkards Cured in 24 Hours.

Any Lady Can Cure the Most Violent Drunkard Secretly at Home.

To Prove It, a Free Trial Package Is Sent Sealed to All Who Write.

Let no woman despair. The sure, quick, permanent cure for drunkenness has been found.

It is Golden Remedy. It has no odor. It has no taste. Just a little is put in the drunkard's cup of coffee or tea, or in his food. He will never notice it, he will be cured before he realizes it, and he will never know why he abandoned the taste for liquor.

Happy Once More and Golden Remedy Did It.

His desire for drink disappears absolutely, and he will even abhor the very sight and smell of whiskey.

The vigor he has wasted away by drink will be restored to him, and his health and strength and cheerfulness will return to brighten your home.

Golden Remedy has cured some of the most violent cases in a day's time. This fact is proven by many ladies who have tried it.

Mrs. Hattie Balkins, Vanceburg, Ky., says:

"My husband took two doses of your medicine about five months ago and has not taken a drink or had any desire for liquor since then. Our home is so different now."

Save your loved one from premature death and the terrible consequences of the drink curse and save yourself from poverty and misery.

It costs absolutely nothing to try. Send your name and address to Dr. J. W. Haines, 4314 Glenn Building, Cincinnati, Ohio, and he will at once send you a free package of the marvelous Golden Remedy in a plain, sealed wrapper.

He will also send you the strongest, conclusive proof of what a blessing it has been to thousands of families.

Send for a free trial package of Golden Remedy to-day.

TWO INJURED BY EXPLOSION MAY NOT LIVE

GLOUCESTER, June 12.—Two men were badly injured by a gasolene explosion in the garage of Osborne Brown on Rogers street, shortly before noon to-day. They are at the Gloucester Emergency Hospital, on the dangerous list.

The injured men, who were employed by Brown, are Herbert C. Greenleaf of No. 281 Main street, and Ernest F. Brigham of No. 24 Commercial street.

The explosion wrecked the interior of the garage and caused a panic among the other workmen. Workmen in a number of nearby factories were also alarmed, as the report of the explosion was deafening.

Greenleaf and Brigham were at work on a touring car when escaping gasolene came in contact with a lantern. The explosion which followed wrecked the machine, hurled the men over twenty feet, and shattered glass in windows of houses and factories several blocks away.

Part of the engine cylinder was blown through the brick wall into the street, narrowingly missing several children who were at play.

Both men were taken from the building badly burned. At the Emergency Hospital it was found that Greenleaf was the most seriously injured. His body was badly burned, and his right hand shattered.

20 DROWNED AS TORPEDO BOAT SINKS

ST. PETERSBURG, June 12.—The Naval Department to-day received a dispatch from the Admiral commanding the Black Sea fleet that the torpedo boat Kambala sank yesterday during a storm on the Black Sea.

The commander, lieutenant commander, engineer and seventeen members of the crew were drowned.

The manoeuvres of the torpedo squadron have been going on in the Black Sea during the past week. The weather has been stormy during the progress of the trials, and it is believed that the plate of the Kambala had been weakened by the strain of the heavy seas. Yesterday afternoon the storm increased in violence and the Kambala was suddenly seen to leave the torpedo formation and dash for the shore. The boat had apparently sprung a severe leak and the commander was trying to beach the vessel. The effort was vain, however, and the boat sunk a quarter of a mile from shore in forty feet of water.

Boats were immediately put out from the war vessels accompanying the torpedo fleet, but they were unable to save any members of the torpedo boat crew.

IVERS & POND'S PIANO RENTAL PLAN

Families going to the seashore or country for the Summer need not move pianos to country homes, but can save the expense and trouble through the Ivers & Pond Company's rental plan. This well-known Boston house has made a specialty for years of renting pianos for country homes and is patronized by many families of social prominence in this city. All desired information on the subject may be obtained at the company's office, No. 114 Boylston street.

MALDEN WIFE FINDS SNAKE IN PANTRY

Mrs. P. Edwards of No. 165 Tremont street, Malden, went into hysterics when she found a two-foot snake in a dish in her pantry. The snake was killed by Mr. Edwards, after it had been chased about the house.

MRS. HOWARD GOULD IN A BITTER BATTLE TO CLEAR HER NAME

Mrs. Howard Gould, note book in hand, testifying in $250,000 alimony suit. Sketched in court by Boston American staff artist.

NEW YORK, June 12.—Mrs. Katherine Clemmons Gould is fighting hard to protect her good name from the clever attacks of the skilled legal prober who is defending Howard Gould, her husband, in a suit for separation and $250,000 annual alimony, before Justice Dowling in the Supreme Court.

The first line of attack made by Attorney Delancey Nicoll dealt with her acquaintance with Colonel W. F. Cody, better known as "Buffalo Bill," who was her manager in the days before she met Mr. Gould, when she was known to the stage as Katherine Clemmons.

It was an actor—Dustin Farnum—who was mentioned in the second instance. The cross-examination in regard to meetings with Farnum at the St. Regis, Castle Gould, Hartford, Washington, Lynchburg, Va., and other places, meetings since Howard Gould abandoned her, was particularly severe.

Mrs. Gould's smiling "Of course I saw him there," or "Certainly he had supper as my guest," robbed many of Mr. Nicoll's questions of their sting. When the attack on her reputation began her cheeks crimsoned and she fanned herself vigorously. As she saw the defence making little headway her self possession returned, and with it her skill at parrying questions and full feminine confidence of retort.

Assails Gould's Methods.

Clarence J. Shearn, attorney for Mrs. Gould, ended the questions regarding his client's relations with Colonel Cody when, on the heels of an objection, he again flayed Howard Gould. He characterized the husband's course as shocking to the sense of justice in that, to save alimony, he assailed the reputation of the woman who for eight years had been his wife, and had to go back twenty years to do it.

Mr. Nicoll returned to the attack, so far as Dustin Farnum was concerned, again and again during the day. At every point Mrs. Gould was ready for him, and laughed heartily over some of his questions. She has a wonderful system of chronology, one that she has worked out for herself, and it puzzled Mr. Nicoll not a little.

She dated things from the "Willie K. Vanderbilt Cup race" and by the time of "that horrid article you had published in the paper about me." On the first day of the trial she fixed her dates by the Galveston Flood, the Paris Exposition and the "Shamrock yacht races." She declared that dates meant nothing to her, and that she preferred to go by events rather than the almanac.

Much of the time was given over to an examination of bills for dresses, blouses, stockings, jewelry and shoes purchased, to the aleged amount of $70,000, after she had separated from Mr. Gould.

Was Without Stockings.

"I was without stockings," she said in explanation of one bill for $500, "and I was in Paris!" The courtroom smiled with her.

Of another bill she remarked.

"Mr. Gould refused to pay, and the dresses are still over there. That is why I had to run that Osborn bill to which you objected."

Mr. Nicoll seemed to be trying to impress Justice Dowling with Mrs. Gould's extravagance. He made a point of her admission that she had not examined some of the bills and hadn't an idea what expensive gowns cost.

"I'd have examined them all," she retorted, "if you'd been kind enough to send them to me. Of course, I am interested in how my husband spends his money; I expect to get hold of some of it some day."

Mrs. Gould was sadly bored during most of the examination as to bills and accounts. She would not look at a stack of St. Regis Hotel bills which Howard Gould had paid for her. She said she did not make a practice of looking at hotel bills, and that they would tell her absolutely nothing.

Woman of Mystery.

There is a woman of mystery in the Howard Gould case, and if Mrs. Gould keeps on slipping insinuations into the record the name is likely to come out. She succeeded in saying that Mr. Gould had a duplicate of a diamond pendant, costing a small fortune and ordered by herself at Tiffany's, made for "the other woman." She previously said she was afraid her husband had been paying some other woman's bills, thinking, perhaps, that they were her own.

It has been intimated that a woman prominent in society might be brought into the case. Mr. Gould's attorneys scoff at the idea, and the legal representatives of Mrs. Gould will not discuss it. It is possible that the one or more women will be named when Mrs. Menelly, who has been in attendance at the trial under subpoena for the plaintiff, takes the stand. She is said to have had charge of a fine house at No. 111 West Forty-third street, which was leased in the name of a dummy and at which some lavish entertainments have been given.

6 AMERICANS PRESENTED AT ENGLISH COURT

Special Cable to Boston American

LONDON, June 12.—Mrs. Whitelaw Reid presented six Americans at the last court of the season—Mrs. Joseph Stickney of New York, Mrs. Walter Farwell of Chicago, Miss Anita Stewart, daughter of Mrs. J. H. Smith of New York, Miss Ruth Adams of New York, Miss Yvonne Townsend of Washington and Miss Julia Calhoun of New York.

Mrs. Joseph Stickney wore a sheath gown of ivory white vestal satin. So tightly were the folds of satin drawn about her figure that it is remarkable she achieved the deep obeisance required by presentation etiquette. The overrobe was entirely covered with the diamond trimming so much in vogue.

The corsage sparkled with diamond ornaments. A diamond tiara and a dog collar of the same gems finished this beautiful costume. Worth considers this the most beatuiful court dress he ever made.

Mrs. Walter Farwell wore a princess gown of white satin, with a deep border of pearl and diamond trimmings on the skirt, and a little satin bolero was covered with the same trimmings. Mrs. Farwell wore a pearl and diamond tiara and a diamond necklace.

Miss Anita Stewart's presentation gown was of cream white satin on the directoire style. The corsage was bordered with white lisse and outlined on the silver. The train was of white lisse over silver tissue. Her hair ornaments were pearls, and these and a small pearl necklace were the only jewels.

Miss Julia Calhoun wore a gown of palest old rose satin charmeuse embroidered in white and silver bugles in princess style. The train was of moon-silver tissue and embroidered in silver bugles, so that it glistened in the light quite enough to justify its name.

Miss Calhoun carried a bouquet of cream white roses. Her jewels were a gold band studded with pearls in her hair and a necklace of pearls.

Miss Ruth Adams was presented in a gown of ivory white satin, trimmed with silver. Her bouquet was of pink moss rosebuds and ferns. She wore no jewels save a pearl necklace.

NEW BUG OPENS MOTH VENDETTA

Calosoma Sycophanta is on the job! Look out for him! He's your friend and literally worth his weight in gold.

The natural enemy of the gypsy and browntail moths which has been introduced by the State Forester, F. W. Rane, will probably be found feasting on his kind of chicken—the same being moths and their pupae under the burlap bands encircling your tree.

Kill the moths of course, but in their slaying have a care that you harm not your extremely active, albeit tiny ally.

Mr. Rane would like to hear from as many as find the diminutive Calosoma Sychophanta to know how far he has managed to deploy his invading battalions. Calosoma Sycophanta, New England, hard-pressed by the conquering enemy, welcomes you.

TWO RESCUED FROM MOTORBOAT

Two Bostonians in a thirty-foot knockabout were found in a desperate plight off Chatham early to-day and rescued when all hope seemed gone. The men were Captain George Hughes and Abraham Hart, both of East Boston, and their vessel was the knockabout Cuyamel, which was bound around the Cape from Winthrop.

They were rescued by Edgar Jones and his son, Norman Jones, of Chatham, who had started out in a big power boat for a day's fishing. The yacht was being taken around the Seaconnet, where her owner, a Mr. McIntosh, resides, when she was struck by the gale and had most of her sails blown away.

She broached to and seas soon filled her so that she was liable to sink at any minute. The power boat came along at the right time, and together the four men bailed her out, patched up her opened seam with sailcloth and then towed her into Chatham Harbor.

MALDEN'S OLDEST WOMAN REACHES 97

Mrs. Sarah O. Cox, of No. 213 Pleasant street, Malden, is being congratulated today. She is Malden's oldest woman, and has just observed her ninety-seventh birthday. Mrs. Cox is enjoying the best of health, having recovered from a serious illness a few months ago, and bids fair to pass the century mark.

She was born in Malden and has always resided there. She has been a life-long member of the First Methodist Church of Malden, and for many years was leader of the choir in that church.

BOSTON SISTERS PLAN CONVENT IN NEWTON

By permission of Archbishop O'Connell, the Franciscan Sisters of the Immaculate Conception, who have been laboring among the Italian children of the North End for some years, have purchased a lot of land on the boulevard, Newton, opposite the site of the Boston College, where they will erect a convent in the near future.

These sisters have charge of St. Anthony's School, in the North End, which is attended by over 500 Italian children, and they co-operate with the Franciscan Fathers.

MAN CAUGHT WITH NINE DOORMATS

After a long chase through the streets of North Cambridge early to-day, Mitchell Clarke, aged fifty, colored, who carried nine doormats, was captured by Patrolmen Aberle, Healey and Fabry of the North Cambridge police station. For the last month doormats of all shapes and sizes have been stolen from houses in the vicinity of Massachusetts avenue and Forest streets. Clarke was discovered by one of the officers loaded down with doormats, and when told to stop he ran a mile through side streets and back yards before he was captured.

PURE MILK PLEA MADE FOR BABIES

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

The BOSTON AMERICAN'S editorial on Wednesday, "Thousands of Babies Doomed to Death," is true, and should stir a lot of people to thinking. The thinking would be more effective if the mothers of these children had a vote on the things which doom their children.

As you say, "nearly all could be saved," and this committee is organized for that purpose. Last year in Boston 2,352 babies under one year of age died. This represents a death rate of 15 in 100, or eight times the general death rate.

In well-to-do families about one baby dies in 100. In Ward 11 (Back Bay) there were, in the Summer of 1907, eight deaths of babies under one year. All of these occurred on the northern, or poor and congested border of the ward. In Ward 6, with one-third more people in one-half the space, there were 152 such deaths. It is the purpose of this committee to correct this situation in Boston.

The committee is now operating nine stations for the sale of good milk produced on a farm under the supervision of its physicians. For babies this milk is properly modified and distributed at cost in feeding bottles. Nurses are employed at seven of these stations. They encourage the mothers to feed their babies at the breast, so far as they are able. Where a mother is found to be using the facilities of the committee to obtain modified milk when she could be nursing her child and would, if she did not have to earn her and its living, she is referred for a pension to a relief society. One breast fed baby dies to ten who are bottle fed. The committee is now organizing consultations between competent local physicians and the mothers obtaining milk at its stations, at which the health history of the child through the previous week will be considered. Through the co-operation of the Boston School Committee, one of these consultations will be held in the refectory room of the Charlestown High School.

Lest fear of this should be stirred, it should be stated that the committee aims to care for well babies only, and that sick babies are referred either to their private physicians or to clinics.

To enable the committee to enlarge the number of its stations and to conduct its educational campaign adequately, and to save babies this season, it appeals for public contributions, large and small. The committee estimates that $1,200 will pay for the nurse's service, the rent, equipment and incidental expenses of a station for a year. Such a station can care for 150 babies a year.

South End House, Denison House, Peabody House and Lincoln House have already arranged for the support of their stations. A fund is being raised in East Boston. Who will help the North End where four stations are needed, South Boston, Dorchester and other sections? Arthur H. Brooks, No. 4 Joy street, is treasurer.

(Signed) COMMITTEE ON HEALTH AND BABY HYGIENE.

Boston, June 12.

BIG SHIP JUST MISSES CRASH

NEW YORK, June 12.—Held up to-day in a dense fog off Whitestone, L. I., the Fall River line steamship Commonwealth, with 900 passengers aboard, arrived at her pier at the foot of Warren street more than three hours late.

While attempting to make her berth the huge swing line missed its mark, and, falling into the water, became entangled in the paddlebox. Before the engines could be shut off the big stemship narrowly missed crashing into the bulkhead.

Captain Appleby immediately signalled the engine room, and the engines were instantly stopped. Rather than entangle the heavy rope further, the steamship was allowed to drift out into midstream.

The tug Bender, fastening a hawser to the Commonwealth, towed her into her berth. She was not damaged.

LINEMAN SHOCKED; FALLS TO HIS DEATH

AMESBURY, June 12.—While working on an electric light pole here John Cjoubert, an employe of the Amesbury Electric Light Company, received a severe shock, hurling him to the ground, causing injuries from which he died within a short time.

FREIGHT TRAIN HELD UP BY CATERPILLARS

ST. JOHN, N. B., June 12.—A Canadian Pacific Railroad freight train was stalled near Fredericton Junction by caterpillars which covered the track an inch or more deep for nearly two miles. The train crew had to shovel the track clear.

DR. ARTHUR NOYES, FORMER TECH HEAD, OFF TO GIBRALTAR

Dr. Arthur Amos Noyes, former acting president of Technology, sailed for Gibraltar this afternoon on the Canopic. He is accompanied by Dr. William C. Bray of the research laboratory of physical chemistry and Richard H. Ranger, a second year student of physics. Ranger comes from Indianapolis, and his excellence in scholarship on his entrance to Tech immediately attracted the notice of the acting president.

The party will land at Gibraltar and travel about two months through Spain, Italy, Switzerland, France and Germany.

CALLS WOMAN A LOVE PIRATE

Charging that Mrs. Lilla O. Hay of Lynn had alienated her husband's affections, Mrs. Sarah I. Laxton, wife of Dr. J. W. R. Laxton of Lynn and Boston, has commenced suit to recover $10,000 damages. The case will come up on a continuance before Judge Fessenden in the Superior Court in this city on Monday.

Mrs. Laxton claims that Mrs. Hay, who is her husband's stenographer, caused him to leave his home and live apart from her.

Mrs. Anna M. Hurran, a witness for the plaintiff, testified that for thirteen months she took care of seven rooms used by Dr. Laxton in the Exchange building at Lynn. Her duties were those of general housework, and she never remained in the building over night. Dr. Laxton slept in a room, off his office and Mrs. Hay in an adjoining one, she testified. Mrs. Hay's father, 80 years old, was with his daughter nearly all the time, but on one occasion he was away for two or three weeks and the doctor and Mrs. Hay were alone. The doctor's daughters and one of his sons were frequently at the rooms, but never remained over night.

Edward S. Hay, sixty-eight years of age, husband of defendant, was called as a witness by the plaintiff, and had not finished his direct examination when the court adjourned. He was a member of the Sixth Massachusetts Regiment when it went through Baltimore and also served at first lieutenant in the Twenty-sixth Massachusetts Volunteers. His occupation was that of a shoemaker and his present wife was formerly employed as a stitcher. It was in 1904 that he first knew that his wife was secretary to Dr. Laxton, and at one time he (Hay) was employed by the doctor at $12 per week. When the Boston office was opened Mrs. Hay did not reach home until late at night and sometimes not at all.

SOMERVILLE BOY HIT BY BALL IS DYING

Edward Muldoon, the sixteen-year-old son of James J. Muldoon of No. 24 Putnam street, Somerville, is dying at his home from the effects of a pitched ball that struck him in the right temple while at play in Lincoln park.

Despite the most persistent efforts of a physician to rouse him to consciousness, he has lain in an unbroken coma ever since he fell senseless while at the bat four days ago.

USE WIRELESS TO FIND WIDOW OF BENNETT

City Auditor Upham of Cambridge today said:

"My son-in-law had no reason for committing suicide except his illness. He had two serious operations performed, and he went to Europe thinking the trip would benefit him.

"He never fully recovered from the operations, and instead of getting better by the trip he grew worse. That's why he was returning so soon. It was the intention for them to stay in Europe several weeks longer.

"We expect to get in touch with my daughter to-day by wireless. The steamship company is trying to reach the Berlin by wireless for us, and so is the United States Government. Through the Consul I got them to try.

"The regular wireless companies are also trying to reach the vessel. We hope to talk to my daughter by wireless to-day and get from her the details of this very sad affair. We are all broken up over it. Just think of it! And they were married just a month ago to-day."

"I am at a loss to understand this terrible affair. We have had but the slightest details of it and are now trying to reach my daughter-in-law by wireless from New York. I do not believe that my son committed suicide. I believe that he fell overboard while dizzy as the result of his illness. He has been through some severe sickness of late and went through a serious operation one year ago. His health was not good.

"There was absolutely no reason why he should commit suicide. I received a letter from him only yesterday and it was written in a very happy vein. He described in great detail where he had been and where he intended going and spoke of what a good time he and his bride were having. You can see what a great shock this news is to us.

Josiah Quincy Bennett, father of the missing young man, to-day said:

No Suicide Motive.

"I have always been thoroughly intimate with my son's affairs. In them was nothing to cause him to commit suicide. He was abroad on his wedding trip. His affairs had been left in the best of shape; there was nothing on his mind to even worry him.

"I know he never had any trouble or even in the slightest way came in contact with any Black Hand societies. He never had anything to do with the arrest of any members of that society in Ohio, as has been intimated, or anywhere else.

"This is the first definite word I have received about his disappearance. I received a cablegram that made me fear the worst but gave no details. I immediately cabled Naples to Mrs. Bennett and asked for details, but had received no answer."

Is a Harvard Man.

Bennett was twenty-seven years old, graduated from Harvard five years ago and was a member of the law firm of Forbush & Bennett, of No. 53 State street, Boston. He was the son of Josiah Quincy Bennett of Burnham, Bennett & Co., bankers. His father is president of the Cambridge Electric Light Company and connected with many other corporations.

Young Bennett was married on May 12 last to Miss Lucetta Upham of No. 10 Linnaean street, Cambridge. She is the daughter of Harry T. Upham, auditor of Cambridge.

He disappeared Thursday night, while the ship was making the run from Genoa to Naples. At the time his wife was with a number of friends in the saloon. A thorough search of the vessel was made for the missing man and the commander of the liner swept the sea with a searchlight in a futile effort to find him.

Victim of Black Hand.

But the most sensational theory comes from the London Daily Chronicle's correspondent in Milan, who declares it is believed Mr. Bennett has fallen a victim of the Neapolitan Cammorra and had been murdered or kidnapped for the sake of his cash and jewelry. Still another theory comes from the same source to the effect that he might have been mistaken for some other American and killed in revenge for the arrest in Ohio of members of the Black Hand.

DOVES GO AFTER ANOTHER GAME
FROM THE CUBS

UNDER THE OLD STRAW HAT

BY C. E. VAN LOAN.

"OLD BIRD" BENNETT, who used to know something about race horses and their handlers, compiled a table showing that there were exactly forty-nine reasons why the best horse in the race might not win.

"Bad riding orders" was his first reason. "Old Bird" frequently remarked that there were more ways of stopping a good horse than by snatching the jaw-bone out of him at the head of the stretch.

Did you ever hear the orders that Larry—well, never mind the last name—gave to his boy out in Seattle? Larry had a good one in the third race; a horse which had not started at the meeting. He went into the ring to bet, expecting to get ten to one and maybe fifteen, but the horse was at fours and still going down under a strong play. Larry rubbed his chin a few times and strolled back to the paddock. When the saddling bell rang and the little boys came out of the jockeys' room to ride, Larry took his rider into a corner of the stall and instructed him in this manner:

"Now, little bye, mind ye this; ye're goin' a mile an' a furlong an' ye're to be in no hurry. This is no five-furlong dash, understand that. This horse is no lightnin' breaker; he likes to git away slow an' not be hustled. Git off wid him, but don't rush him off his feet! Take a good, strong hold o' him and aise him a little—till he gits into his sthride. He's no front runner, bye, mind ye that! Thrown him in on the rail an' go soft an' aisy 'round the fir-rst turn. When you git him in the back stretch take a good holt of him agen an' STICK TO THE RAIL. When ye're turnin' from the back stretch don't lose his head for a minute or he might run out on you! Remember that

Bet Chooseday! They're Bettin' To-day

"Now, little bye, don't make any mistakes! Remember ye're on the rail. After you run about 100 yards down the stretch, take him 'way to the outside where he can't be bumped or interfered with in anny way an' COME ON WID HIM! We'll bet on him next Chooseday! They're all bettin' on him to-day."

* * *

Said the judge to the defendant in the assault and battery case:

"Why did you strike this man?"

"Judge, yo' honah," said that worthy, "he gimme provocation."

"How is this," said the judge to the complaining witness, whose black bullet head was swathed in many bandages. "Did you give this man provocation?"

"No, suh, judge. Ah sutny did not give him nothin'. We merely havin' a small ah'gment"——

"Ask him whut Ah said" broke in the defendant.

"Well, judge," continued the sufferer, "he says to me, Don' speak to me, you no-count coon! Don't LOOK at me! Your-all say "Sheep" to me an' Ah'll sheut ye'!" Thass whut he said!"

"Well, what did you do?" asked the judge. "Did you continue the quarrel?"

"Judge," said the complaining witness, earnestly, "befo' Ah done thought, Ah say to him 'Sheep! Sheep!' jus' lak that"——

"There, Judge!" said the defendant, triumphantly. "Whut Ah tole you? Didn' Ah say he gimme provocation?"

* * *

Cross Decided Not to Take Chance.

LEACHIE CROSS is on his way to the far West, where he hopes to establish himself by a clean cut victory over the tough Hyland. If Cross will pick a steady gait, as Nelson does, and keep on top of his man from the first round to the finish of the fight, the East Side dentist will have a great chance to win.

He can hit a fair sort of a punch with his right hand and there are few lightweights in the busines who can take what the dentist can give and answer "Present" at the end of the engagement.

Leach thought best to skip his date with Young Corbett.

"Why not?" said the tooth pounder. "Talk all you want to, but every man fighting in the East dreams of the time when he will go to California and get the money and that Western reputation. Now I've got the chance, and though of course I figure that I can lick Billy Rothwell all right and lick him any time I get at him, I wouldn't even take the long chance that he might win from me or outpoint me or something. Me for California."

Bill Rothwell was not pleased when Cross "ran out" on him. Bill cannot wait any too long for his men, and he also is thinking of taking a trip back to the State where his great battles were fought and where, on at least two occasions, hair-line decisions were registered against him.

* * *

Hanlon Had Kick on Decision.

SPEAKING of Rothwell's complaint against the referee of the Britt fight, in which James Edward, weight 130 at 3 o'clock, or something like that, won the "featherweight championship of the world" from the pudgy Denverite, there is another little man in California who can never be persuaded that a just decision would not have given him that "title" before Britt got a whack at it. This boy is Eddie Hanlon.

Eddie was a nice little fighter several years ago, and he got a match with Young Corbett, who accepted it as so much soft money and failed to condition himself properly. As a result Hanlon had the "champion" on the ropes during the last five rounds of the fight, and surely had a better right to a decision than had Britt when he was given the award over Young Corbett.

Notes of the Red Sox Game

Second game of series to-day.

* * *

Elmer Steele will likely work for the Red Sox.

* * *

It was Cy Young from start to finish of the game. He had the locals breaking their backs trying to dodge the foolers.

* * *

Three hits off Mr. Young.

* * *

Schlitzer's shoots were just to the liking of the Naps. He was walloped for ten safe cracks.

* * *

Boston's outfield as well as the infield had an off day, Speaker and Wolter trying to outdo each other at fumbling the ball after singles had been made.

* * *

As was expected, the bugs nearly wore blisters on their fins clapping every time Cy showed himself on the field.

* * *

Schlitzer broke down Stovall's wallop, in the second frame, as much in self defence as anything else. It nearly took the Dutchman's hands off and he heaved the ball wild to Stahl. Jake saved the day with a great stop and tagged Stovall on the line.

* * *

Niles jumped into the error column on two occasions, right early in the contest. He let Goode's liner go through him in the third round, and then in the next inning pegged about six feet high to Stahl on Lajoie's grounder. After a good jump Jake pulled down the ball, thus keeping Lajoie from taking second.

* * *

Cy Young certainly captured Stahl's goat. He took great joy in fanning the Red Sox first sacker on two occasions.

* * *

Hooper set the fans crazy when he ran to the very corner of lot and pulled down Bradley's long fly. This is the longest caught fly seen in Boston this season.

* * *

A queer thing happened in the sixth round when Lajoie got all three assists from Niles, Lord and Speaker. The stop off Niles was a corker and robbed Harry of a hit. Lajoie got Hooper's grounder on a hard try in the next inning, this making four assists in a row.

* * *

With the bases crowded in the fourth, Easterly had a passed ball, which enabled Niles to score the Red Sox' only run.

* * *

Schlitzer certainly did field his position in big league style as he handled seven grounders without an error and assisted in another putout.

* * *

Lajoie fattened his batting average. He walloped three beauty singles out of a like number of times at bat and one other time arrived at first on one of Niles' misplays.

* * *

Pretty lucky to escape the sweep of the white wash brush.

* * *

Cy held a sort of reception after the game and nearly wore out his arm shaking hands with old friends who piled out of the bleachers to pat his broad back. The bugs swarmed about the "Grand Old Man" until he could hardly get out of the grounds.

* * *

Niles, Lord and Wolter are the only Red Legs to connect safely during the contest and Niles scored the lone run for the Taylorites.

* * *

NEWSPAPER TEAM PLAYS NAVY CHAMPS

On Monday afternoon at the South End Grounds the Boston Newspaper Association team will meet the battleship Missouri boys, champions of the navy. This typo. crowd is a fast aggregation, and it will be remembered that they went to New York last season and won the Garry Herrmann cup in the face of opposition from all over the country. They will try to repeat that [illegible] this year at Chicago.

A game is desired for June 17 (afternoon) with some strong team around Boston paying expenses or a small guarantee. Write to James H. Butler, Boston Herald.

THE EEL, 2:02¼, ON EDGE.

The Eel (2:02¼) is showing up well in his work this season for Trainer Dan McEwen. The Eel is one of the best racing pacers on earth, and it will take an awfully good one to head him at any part of the journey this season.

NOTED BROOD MARE DEAD.

Miss Copeland (2:25¼), that produced Copeland (2:09¾), Black Dart (2:12¼), Expectation (dam of Major Delmar, 1:59¾, etc.), died several days ago at the farm of Samuel McMillen, in Putnam County, N. Y. She was twenty-three years old.

BOB SMITH IS COMING.

Bob Smith, who brought Sweet Marie (2.02) East in 1904, and Bellemont (2.09¼ in 1907, intends coming over the Rockies this season with one or two good ones.

HARVARD CLASS DAY

JUNE 25

Applications for tickets will close on June 12th. Graduates can procure blanks at office of Harvard Alumni Association, 50 State Street. All directions will be found on back of blanks.

There will be sales to graduates at 50 State Street on June 23rd from 9.00 A. M. to 4 P. M.; at Seventy-Seven Lodge Gate on June 24th after the baseball game, and Class Day morning.

1909 CLASS DAY COMMITTEE.

JIMMY KELLY ON DEATHBED

CHICAGO, June 12.—Professor Jimmy Kelly of Boston, former manager of Mysterious Billy Smith, the old-time welterweight boxer, and the man who once took Eddie Connelly to England, is dying at the Alexian Brothers' Hospital.

Kelly recently came to Chicago from California and registered at the Sherman House, where he was taken ill. He was removed to the hospital, where he rapidly became worse. An attempt is being made to locate members of his family and acquaint them with his condition.

SONOMA GIRL IS GOOD.

Dick McMahan's latest moves of note with his cracks were a mile in 2.16, with the stallion Montell 2:14¼, and two others the following day, in 2:18¼, with Sonoma Girl 2:05¼ and Bruce Girdle 2:09¼. Sonoma Girl trotted the last quarter of her mile in :30¼, while Bruce Girdle scudded through the home stretch in .30½.

TWO LIKELY RACE HORSES.

Henry Helman, who raced the Boston trotter, Mack Mack (2:08), on the Grand Circuit, has the fast trotter Kid Wilkes, that won a matinee race at Los Angeles, going a heat in 2:10¾, has lately stepped him a mile in 2:10¼. Helman has what looks to be a sensational pacer in the filly Cora, by Del Coronado (2:09½), that worked for him a mile in 2:07¼.

BONNIE WAY IS LAME.

It is to be hoped that the trouble with Bonnie Way, 2, 2:29½ will not prove serious. It would be a thousand pities if that mare, who has trotted so many miles in 2:10 and better, should descend in history with no faster record than she now has.

DANIEL'S NEW TEAMSTER.

Daniel (2.08¼) will have a new teamster this year, being in the stable of the Adams, N. Y., trainer, Melvin Moody.

IN FREE-FOR-ALL RACES.

Major Mallow (2.05½) will take in the free-for-alls on the two-lap rings of the Ohio, Pennsylvania, West Virginia and Maryland Circuit.

TEMPERANCE PARADE SUNDAY, JUNE 27

Fifteen thousand children, boys and girls, connected with the Holy Family Temperance League of the archdiocese of Boston, branches of which exist in several of the Boston parishes, will parade through the principal streets of Boston, Sunday afternoon, June 27. The parade will finish on Boston Common, where exercises will be held commemorating the anniversary of Father Mathew's visit to Boston. The Rev. Francis J. Butler, pastor f St. Leo's Catholic Church, Esmond street, Dorchester, diocesan promoter of the organization, heads the committee in charge. He has selected Major John J. Leonard of the Massachusetts Catholic Order of Foresters to act as chief marshal of the parade. Archbishop O'Connell is expected to view the parade should he arrive home from Rome in time. Bishop-elect Joseph G. Anderson will act in his stead if he is detained.

QUAKERS LIKE WOLGAST.

Followers of boxing in Philadelphia would like to see more of Ad Wolgast, the Milwaukee featherweight who made good in such impressive style at the National A. C. He is the classiest little fellow that has appeared there in a long while. He appears to be a mechanic in every department of the game. His style at times seems to be rather awkward, but his defense is superb, while his punch with his left hand carries conviction with it. Every one knows that Tommy Langdon is a good boy. He has proved that against the best of the little fellows who have shown here, notably Driscoll. But Tommy did not have a sight with Wolgast.

TOWN CLOSES TO SEE GAME

The town of Kearny, N. J., which boasts of a population of 523, shut up shop the other day and went over to New York to see a ball game, and all because one of their fellow-citizens, Joe Miller, was playing with Pittsburg. They sent notice ahead that they were coming and demanded that good seats be held for them. Seeing the name of the fellow they were going to honor, the weather man played an old joke book trick on them by turning on the rain.

SCHOOL SPORTS TO-DAY.

At Wood Island Park, East Boston, this afternoon, the first handicap outdoor meet of the Boston high schools will be held. Few additional entries were made because of the postponement of the games from a week ago. Griffin of the West Roxbury has entered the half and Serrex of the same school the broad jump. English High is the favorite, with Boston Latin, Commercial and Mechanic Arts High as next choice.

FAST SPEEDWAY TROTTER.

Sid Axworthy, 2:12½, sold last Fall by Harry Wood of Wellesley, Mass., to a New York amateur, maintained his hold on the honor of being the best trotter of the season on the New York drive recently by winning the championship class.

CATCHER DOOIN TO QUIT BASEBALL

Catcher Charlie Dooin of the Phillies is playing his last season as a professional player. Dooin made up his mind before the present season began that he would not play after this year, when his contract with the Phillies runs out. This contract calls for Dooin to be paid the sum of $2,000 should be be traded or sold to any other team.

Dooin has desired to keep the fact of his intended retirement secret as long as possible, as he did not want to handicap the efforts of his fellow-players to win this year's pennant or to hurt the club in its efforts to find another man to fill his shoes.

While stories of players retiring are seldom taken seriously, it is known that Dooin is in absolute earnest.

"The stage is not the only thing that is luring me away from the diamond," said Dooin. "My wife has been urging me for a long time to quit the game, and I have a chance next Fall to go into business with my father-in-law, who is a large wholesale grocer at Rochester, N. Y. This offer I have decided to accept, and I expect to start work in Rochester shortly after the first of next year."

JACK JOHNSON WILL APPEAR ON STAGE

Jack Johnson, champion of the world, makes his only public appearance in New England at the Columbia next week. The giant colored wonder will show how he trained for his great contest against Tommy Burns in Australia, using the identical paraphernalia that he used in the antipodes.

He will use George Byers to illustrate the blows that he employed so successfully upon Burns. A vaudeville show will precede the introduction of Johnson.

Preparations are being made by the leading colored men of the city to give Johnson a great reception, and as women will be admitted, it is safe to say that a crowded house will greet the colored gladiator when he steps to the footlights.

MONTREAL BOXING BOUTS.

Frank J. Brady of Montreal has again opened the Riverside Athletic Club in Montreal and proposes to give first-class bouts during the racing meet there. He has secured the Victory Armory, which is near the centre of the city. Already he has arranged the first match, which will be between Bobby Wilson the champion of Canada in his class, and Jeff Dougherty. This bout will take place on June 10, and will be followed by others equally as good.

NEW RACE TRACK READY.

The rebuilt track at Hornell, N. Y., is in daily use by the trainers, and the association is fast replacing the grand stand and stables which were burned after the meeting last August. The new buildings are on a larger and better plan.

SHAWMUT CAR NOW HAS LEAD

BURLINGTON, Col., June 12.—The Shawmut car came into town all alone, in the lead of the other entries in the ocean-to-ocean auto race. The Shawmut traveled ninety miles during the day over heavy roads and in the rain. She crossed a creek on a railroad bridge, where the Ford No. 1 later got stuck in three feet of water. The Shawmut driver started at daybreak, and as the car is in excellent condition, stands a fine chance of reaching Denver first. The Acme is twenty miles east of Oakley, while the Itala is somewhere on the road between St. Louis and Kansas City.

PULLIAM IN CHICAGO.

CHICAGO, June 11.—Harry Pulliam, president of the National League, looking but a shadow of his former self, is in Chicago. He said:

"I do not know when I shall return to the presidency of the league," said Pulliam. "I have been given indefinite leave and shall take advantage of it. I was in Florida and in Wisconsin in an effort to regain my health, and do not know when I shall return to my active duties."

FIELD SPORTS TO FLOURISH IN SEATTLE

SEATTLE, June 12.—Track and field sports will flourish at the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific exposition in the monster Stadium, built to seat 20,000 persons, and affording each spectator an unobstructed view of the running track, two baseball diamonds and a football field of regulation length.

The red-letter day in the calendar of track contests will, of course, be the Amateur Athletic Union contests to be held in August. The events will be more than championship contests; for the first time they will test the relative strength of the East and the West. In the past they have never been matched in equal numbers and under circumstances fair to both. At the big meets held in the East the West has made only a desultory showing, because but few athletes would journey across the continent to enter. At the contest held at Portland, Ore., a number of eastern record-holders entered, but not enough to pit East against West.

The Irish-American, New York, Chicago and other east of the Mississippi clubs will send full teams to Seattle. The Olympic Club of San Francisco, the famous Multnomah Club of Portland and the Spokane and Seattle clubs will enter their best men in competition. Among the famous athletes now with these organizations are: Smithson, Gilbert, Dan Kelly, Snedigar, Cheek, Rose, Cox, Nelson, Plaw, Gerhardt and other topnotchers. The return of Plaw, the hammer-thrower, to his Berkeley form means that John Flannagan will have to heave mightily to win his event.

The national Y. M. C. A. championships will be almost equally important and the contests will be the most notable the association has ever held. A Northwest grammar school contest, a conference meet of the six leading Northwest universities and various interscholastic meets, will round out the track events.

SWEDES WILL RUN OLYMPIC GAMES RIGHT

The decision of the international Olympic committee to hold the 1912 Olympiad at Stockholm, Sweden, instead of Berlin, will prove eminently satisfactory to this country and probably to England. The sorry figure Germany has cut in previous Olympic meets, and the total lack of interest in track and field sports by the Germans should have convinced everyone that Berlin was no place for the games.

Outside of England and the United States no other country has made such progress in athletics as Sweden. The Swedes did admirable work at Athens in 1906, and they improved on this at London a year ago. With this natural enthusiasm and the impetus of entertaining the coming athletic congress the land of the midnight sun should have a worthy team three years hence.

The Swedish Olympic committee will have able assistance from Crown Prince Christian, who was so deeply interested in the 1908 games that he was constantly within the London Stadium, mingling in most democratic fashion with the athletes and officials.

It will be interesting to observe how the games of 1912 are to be managed. Probably the International Olympic committee will turn over the active management to the Swedish association which promotes track and field athletics there, just as it did to the English A. A. A. two years ago.

The United States will undoubtedly try to prevent one country monopolizing the conduct of the games after their experience in 1908 with the English. It should be pointed out, too, that England was far better qualified to conduct the games than Sweden will be. It takes lots of experience to run a set of Olympic games, and it is doubtful if the Swedes can do this without the assistance of the International committee.

SPORTING MISCELLANY

The four class presidents and the captains of all the Harvard athletic teams elected the undergraduate members of the Harvard Athletic Association as follows: Eliot Bacon, '10, of Long Island; Hamilton Fish, Jr., '10, of Garrison on the Hudson; Herbert Jaques, Jr., of Chestnut Hill.

Entries from prominent athletes in all parts of the country are being received for the athletic meet and field day at the Huntington avenue grounds, Saturday, June 26, for the benefit of the fund for the new Cambridgeport Gymnasium. Chairman Roberts of the athletic committee says that the meet will be one of the best held in this section in many a day. He expects from 10,000 to 15,000 people.

• • •

The entries for the handicap track and field meeting of the Young Men's Christian Associations of Massachusetts and Rhode Island to be held next Saturday at Wood Island Park, East Boston, close to-day with William McPherson, Newton Y. M. C. A., Newton.

• • •

The Boston Newspaper Association team will meet the battleship Missouri boys, champions of the navy, Monday afternoon on the South End grounds. The newspaper team went to New York last season and won the Garry Hermann cup. They will try to repeat that trick this year at Chicago.

• • •

The Tufts College athletic advisory board has announced that Edward N. Robinson has been secured to coach the football team next Fall. Robinson is the former Brown coach. He will have twelve varsity men to begin the season next year: Captain Dittrick, quarterback; Wallace and Bowlin, halfbacks; Houston and Ireland, centres; Crowley, Burt and Morton, guards; Marr and Costanza, tackles; Merrill and Dunn, ends.

• • •

The Boston and district soccer football team managers have received invitations from the secretary of the American Football Association of New York to enter teams for the Fall contest for the All-American cup ties. Up to the present no Boston teams have figured in these contests, which in the main have been confined to teams representing New York and Philadelphia, and it is likely that under the rules that now govern the competition Boston will again be unrepresented.

• • •

LOWELL, June 12.—The national automobile race for stock chassis cars is assured to the projectors of a two days' automobile carnival over the Lowell course by the governing board of the American Automobile Association. A $5,000 trophy has been guaranteed to the association for the event, this year's race to be the first of such annual affairs.

• • •

PRINCETON, June 12.—At Carnegie Lake the second annual interclass eight-oared race for the Carnegie trophy was won by the sophomores with practically the same crew that won last year as freshmen. The time was 10:52 3-5, over a mile and seven-eighths course. The juniors were half a length behind. The first year men were a poor third, and the seniors last.

• • •

LEWISTON, Me., June 12.—Ray W. Harriman, '10, of Gardiner, was elected captain of the Bates baseball team for next year. Harriman has pitched for the past three years.

• • •

BRUNSWICK, June 12.—William H. Clifford, 1911, of Lewiston, was elected captain of the Bowdoin baseball team. Clifford has played first base for two years.

• • •

EXETER, June 12.—D. J. P. Wingate, '10, of Winchester, Mass., was unanimously elected captain of next year's academy nine. He is president of the New England Interscholastic Athletic Association, football manager for next Fall, an editor of the Exonian and a member of the glee club and of the Phi Epsilon Sigma fraternity.

• • •

ANDOVER, June 12.—Eugene L. Brown of Brookline was elected captain of the Phillips Andover Acdarmy baseball nine for next season. Brown has played two seasons on the Andover nine.

• • •

NEW YORK, June 12.—Crack bicycle riders from all parts of the United States and from a half dozen European countries are among the 140 entries in a bicycle handicap to be raced over the Marathon distance at Valley Stream, L. I., tomorrow. James J. Corbett will fire the starting pistol. The handicap limit is 8½ minutes and the scratch men are Lawrence of San Francisco, Stroud of Philadelphia, Schmoll of Philadelphia, Steinert of Long Island and Hawkins and Nerent of New York.

• • •

The contests for the Channing-Chase medal and certificates for general proficiency in swimming, open to high school pupils, were held at the Brookline public baths. The Channing-Chase medal was won by Lawrence Johnson. Frank O'Hara received the certificate given by the Massachusetts Humane Society, while the certificates offered by the Brookline School Committee were won by Charles Beatly, Joseph Hickey, Jack O'Hearn, Thomas Fay, Philip Johnson, Edward Hill, Albert Pollard, Henry O'Day, L. Priest and Edward Wesson.

Results of Boxing Bouts

BALTIMORE, June 12.—Griff Jones of Brooklyn, after taking a good lacing at the hands of Kid Lenny, lost the decision to the local boy in the tenth round on a foul. The Brooklynite fought rough house from the start. Lenny simply made a punching bag out of his opponent and had Jones wobbly in almost every round after the fourth, but was unable to land the finishing blow.

• • •

PHILADELPHIA, June 12.—Curley Ulrich from Duluth got a trouncing at the Nonpariel A. C., when he stacked up against Johnny Willetts of this city. The bout was stopped in the fifth round to save the visitor from unnecessary punishment. In the fourth round Curley twice took the count of nine, and again in the fifth. Willetts rained all kinds of blows upon Ulrich and beat him badly about the body.

• • •

KANSAS CITY, Mo., June 12.—With a terrific left hook to the wind, Ad Wolgast, the Milwaukee featherweight, knocked out Teddy Peppers of Kansas City within thirty seconds of the final gong in their scheduled ten-round bout before the Empire A. C. Peppers took a great deal of punishment and it was a slashing bout from the first.

GOLF GOSSIP NEWS OF THE LINKS

W. G. Pfeil, who was at one time a member of the Woodland Golf Club, Auburndale, defeated H. B. McFarland in a match that went to the home green in the Philadelphia individual championship. McFarland was picked to win the tourney this year by many, while some favored the chances of Dr. Simon Carr, the present holder of the title.

That some players don't know enough to go in when it rains was demonstrated at Woodland Thursday when Commonwealth and Woodland were to play off their foursomes in the sectional team matches. Commonwealth had won all the points necessary to put them into the second round, without a win in the foursomes, but they played for the looks of things, and when the round was over, there was some talk of taking the captains of the two teams and throwing them in the pond, for the needless ducking the players had received, while the captains themselves defaulted and kept in under a dry roof.

Eben M. Byers the former national champion, was the leader in the open three day tourney held over the links of the Allegheny Country Club recently. He had a very fine card of 150 for the thirty-six holes which led his nearest competitor by three strokes. This shows that the former national champion is still in the game, and playing as well as ever.

Miss Mary B. Adams, who is engaged to be married, is certainly getting a great collection of silverware in anticipation of the coming event. She has captured the Boston Women's and the Eastern Women's championships and a prize for approaching and putting during the past two weeks, and is in a way to capture quite a few more cups incidentally.

Your entries have got to be in by 6 p. m. to-night if you want to play in the State championship that starts at Oakley next Thursday. Send them through the secretary of your club to R. R. Freeman, the Secretary of the Massachusetts Golf Association.

FELLSWAY RACE CARD IS BEST OF SEASON

Will it be Axtelloid or Bonnie Belle, or both, that will suffer the initial defeat of the season when they clash to-day in the races of the Fellsway Driving Club at Combination Park, Medford, is the problem agitating the horsemen of Greater Boston. In the same event is entered Major M., and Guy F., each with whirlwind speed quite capable of giving the invincibles all of the racing they will want.

The nine races scheduled contain the most closely matched lot of pacers and trotters that have appeared on any local track or speedway this season, it being an impossibility for the dope artists to pick the winners. The club has voted to have Saturday "ladies' day," when they will be admited free to the track and grandstand.

BARON WILKES SOLD.

—The great progenitor Baron Wilkes, 2:18, head of the famous "futurity family," and once the property of Colonel John E. Thayer, Lancaster, Mass., has been sold by F. L. Strube, Emporia, Kan., to W. A. Ralston, Howard, Kan., together with the young stallion Bingenerns, son of Bingen 2:06¼, six high-bred brood mares and six young colts. Although now twenty-seven, Baron Wilkes is reported to be in excellent health.

QUARTER IS THE LIMIT OF QUAKER FANS

In Philadelphia town a dime looks about as large to the average resident as does a dollar to the inhabitant of a certain big city ninety miles further east. It is only on rare occasions—holidays, opening days, or something of that sort—that a native-born Philadelphian ever pays more than 50 cents to see a game of ball. A quarter is the usual sum.

Long, long ago baseball was established in the Quaker City on a 25-cent basis, and there it has ever remained. It was argued then that as house rent, garden truck and other necessities of life cost only about half as much in Philadelphia as they did in other big cities, amusements should be charged for in the same ratio. The argument obtained, and 25 cents was made the regular rate of admission to professional ball games in Philadelphia.

Later a heroic effort, inaugurated by Frank De Haas Robison, was made to bring Philadelphia into line with other cities; to make 50 cents the minimum charge except to the open bleachers, and to fix the grandstand and box seat prices at 75 cents, $1 and $1.25. The Philadelphia owners fought the proposition fiercely. John I. Rogers made a two-day speech against the change.

"Philadelphia people," he said, "will pay 50 cents for a grandstand seat, but they will not pay more. Why should they? In this great city of Philadelphia I can rent a better house for $18 a month than I can in Cleveland, Cincinnati or Pittsburg for $40. Our people are educated in economy. To raise prices here means to kill baseball in this great city."

The colonel almost wept as he talked on in this vein hour after hour, while a crowd of white-aproned young men moved up and down the stairs, bringing big tray loads of tinkling glasses. Finally he sat down and by a vote of 6 to 2 it was decided to keep admission prices to the games in Philadelphia at the old established rate, and there they have remained at both parks ever since.

Score cards at the Philadelphia grounds cost a penny, and a man caught paying 10 cents for a cigar is suspected as being a spy sent there by a millionaire club owner to watch the work of the Philadelphia players.

DOVEY DENIES THAT BOWERMAN IS OUT

MEMPHIS, Tenn., June 12.—Declaring that Dahlen was only in temporary charge of the team, President George S. Dovey of the Boston Nationals denied a report that Frank Bowerman had been deposed as manager.

"Bowerman is scouting of material, just as I am doing," said President Dovey. "He will be back in charge in a few days. Dahlen is in charge of the team in the meantime."

Dovey said he saw three players in the game, here between Memphis and Birmingham, that look good enough for a Boston trial. He kept his secret to himself but the trio is believed to be second baseman Cranston of Memphis, first baseman Gygli of Birmingham and outfielder Coulson of Memphis.

FAST TROTTING TRIAL.

The veteran Country Jay, 2:10½, has trotted a mile in 2:12½, the last half in 1:04½ and last quarter in 30¼, doing it so handily that it is believed if he stands up until the races begin he will be one of the most formidable horses in his class.

Baseball News and Notes

The management of the Danville, Susquehanna League baseball team has added to its pitching staff Frank Coveleskie, brother of the famous Harry Cloveleskie, of the Philadelphia Nationals. The Cloveleskies are a baseball family, two other brothers, Staney and John, being respectively pitcher and right fielder on the Lancaster Tri-State team.

By beating the Philies thre games straight, including two shut-outs, the Chicago Cubs got even for what the Athletics did to the White Sox.

• • •

Report comes from Minneapolis that Mike Cantillon declares he has no use for Nick Altrock. That is an awful slam on the old White Sox veteran. Any time Mike Cantillon gets wise that a ball player has outlived his usefulness the player is surely doomed for the bushes.

• • •

Manager Bresnahan of the St. Louis Cardinals has sold Shortstop Tom Reilly to the Baltimore Eastern League club. Hulswitt is covering short in such splendid fashion that Bresnahan has no use for Reilly.

• • •

Herman Schaefer, captain of the Detroit Tigers, has a kink in his throwing arm, and it is likely to cut short his diamond career. Much throwing has developed a bony growth and at present there is a decided crook in the arm.

• • •

Barney Dryfuss of Pittsburg is angry because the story that Hans Wagner's salary is partially paid by the other National League clubs, will not down. Dryfuss says that he alone pays Wagner.

• • •

Kitty Bransfield, first baseman for the Phillies, has a dislocated shoulder that will keep him out for at least two weeks. Bransfield thought he had rehumatism in his shoulder, but an X-ray examination disclosed a bad dislocation.

• • •

Conundrum—What is Chicago? Answer—It's a city that once had a bang-up American League ball team. Those days are gone, kind reader.

• • •

Detroit works before luncheon every day. So does Philadelphia, New York and a whole lot of other clubs which look better than Cleveland. Maybe more work in the morning continued right on into the afternoon would win a greater percentage of ball games.

• • •

The New York papers continue to try to convince themselves and the public that Murray is just as good a ball player as Donlin, and that Mique is not needed anyhow. They do not, however, go so far to say that should Mique return he would have difficulty in getting back into the game.

• • •

Isn't there some way to head off those Pirates? They are going along at entirely too swift a gait for anybody's comfort.

• • •

Queer how things go in the game. So far, in the American League, there have been three tied games this season, and the White Sox were in every one of the three.

• • •

The row between Barney Dreyfus and Charlie Murphy is hugely amusing to the rest of the baseball world. Go to it, boys, and eat each other up!

Walter Johnson keeps right on losing games. No matter how well he pitches or how many extra innings, he always gets it in the neck.

• • •

Overall is the hardest working pitcher in the National League. He has piched 106 innings so far. The toiler of the American League is Frank Smith, who has already worked 137 innings.

• • •

Al Orth is now playing second base for Lynchburg. Who ever suspected that he was so versatile! Outfield and first were supposed to be his limit, aside from pitching.

• • •

Fall River has an outfielder named Messenger. He probably runs all the errands for the management between games.

• • •

Veteran Ball Player George Van Haltren, who was ten years with Giants, was handed his release by the Oakland Coast League club. It was a great surprise to Van Haltren, although he was recently deposed as manager. The club management says Van is growing too old for active service. He served for a decade with the giants from 1894, and generally headed the batting list.

• • •

Joseph Londrigan, formerly with the Hazelton team, and last year captain of the U. of P. nine has joined Jersey City, of the Eastern League, to which he was sent by Connie Mack, manager of the Philadelphia Athletics. Mack bought Londrigan's contract from the Trenton Tri-State League Club last Winter.

BIKE QUARTET RACE AT REVERE TRACK TONIGHT

There's a hot old bike race scheduled tonight at the Revere track when four paced riders will make the saucer track sizzle with their speed.

The quartet is composed of Anderson, the Dane, Pat Logan of South Boston, Mitten, the Iowa Chicken and Caldwell of Hartford. They are to travel twenty-five miles behind the motors and the lot is so evenly matched up that it's impossible to pick a winner.

It's the first time in years that four paced riders have got out on the narrow track to go the distance and the sight is never more exhilarating than watching bike chasers tearing off the gait at nearly a mile a minute.

The men are in fine condition to do some lightning work as the racing on the small tracks down in New Jersey has kept them up to top form.

There are three other events on the card, including an amateur unlimited pursuit race, five miles open and three mile motor race.

RACE DRIVER BREAKS LEG.

The well-known trotting horse trainer and race driver, Theodore L. Arthur, of Brooklyn, N. Y., is laid up with a fractured leg, received from a kicking horse, and has turned what horses he had in training over to J. H. Phillips of Parkway.

HUSSEY QUITS SULKY.

Chase Hussey has forsaken the sulky and accepted a mercantile position in Montana. "Say au revoir, but not good-bye."

Woman's Intense Jealousy

Righteous Jealousy Different from the Wearing, Petty Kind

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Of all the emotions which we humans are heir to there is none so biting, so all-powerful, as jealousy. Once started, it is almost impossible to subdue, for everything adds fuel to the flame.

The horrible thing about it is that it can make you hate your very dearest friend, your own sister, or even your own child.

The most intense jealousy is, of course, that which deals with the love of man for woman, and vice versa.

It is a form of insanity, and the victim imagines much that never occurs.

I know of one girl whose fiance was obliged to take a long trip soon after they became engaged. From something he said in a letter, she got it into her head that he was interested in a girl on board ship.

He mentioned that girl once or twice in the most casual way, and no one but a jealous girl would have seen anything to find fault with.

Generally Disgusts a Man

She, however, had frequently heard of this other girl, and knew her to be very good looking. She worked herself into a perfect passion of jealousy, and grew thin and pale.

When the man came home she was ready to break the engagement. He, of course, was utterly amazed and not a little bit disgusted.

Things were finally patched up, but I don't believe he ever felt quite the same love for her after that.

It is often said that there can be no real love without jealousy. There is a difference, however, between petty jealousy and righteous jealousy.

The woman who is jealous every time the man she loves speaks civilly to an attractive woman is guilty of the pettiest kind of jealousy, and extremely insulting to the other woman.

If, however, another woman deliberately comes between you and the man you love, and steals his love, I think the jealousy caused is perfectly justifiable.

I cannot pretend to judge of man's jealousy. It is too fierce and primeval a thing for a woman to gauge.

Makes Woman Suspicious

As a rule, it is not as easily aroused as that of woman; but once it is aroused little short of actual violence satisfies it.

The ugliest feature of jealousy is the suspicion which always accompanies it. When a jealous woman sees two people talking together she jumps to the conclusion that they are talking about her.

I have said before, and I repeat it, that, while a woman is flattered by a man's jealousy, a man is bored by a woman's.

The chief reason for this is that the moment a woman becomes jealous she begins to nag. She exacts an accounting for every moment of time spent away from her, and she makes the fatal mistake of decrying the woman of whom she is jealous.

The Hasty Reformer

By C. B. QUINCY

A LOQUACIOUS young clam delivered a speech.
To the various natives of Scituate Beach;
He called them all shellfish and lacking in spine,
And roasted them plenty and good down the line.
He told them to think not of tide nor of storm,
When their evident mission in life was reform.
"Let us all take a vow"—here his voice became louder—
"To end the abuse that is known as clam chowder.
Its evil designs reach us under the foam.
They break up the family, ruin the home;
The weeping young mother is dragged from her shell,
And our fairest are slain through its terrible spell.
As soon as we settle down under the ooze,
With the tide ripples lulling us into a snooze,
Along comes a clammer and tears up our bed
And we sleep in a plate of clam chowder instead.
Which is why I maintain we should valiantly fight
This menace to life. Let us stand for the Right."

* * *

In the pause that ensued an ancient old clam
Took occasion to hand the reformer a slam—
"You should study your subject before you talk louder—
Don't you know that there's never a clam in clam chowder?"

Roosevelt Puzzle Solution

PUZZLEISTS have figured out that Colonel Roosevelt's hunting score, according to the Selous system of points, must have been made as follows:

One giraffe, 10 points; two hippos, 50 points; three rhinos, 150 points, and four lions, 20 points—a total of 230 points for ten animals, which gives him an average of 23.

The hundred prize puzzle books for best answers are awarded to the following solvers:

Suppressed Traits and One Sensible Father

By ELLA WHEELER WILCOX

THIS little talk is for some clergymen and laymen of strict and severe "orthodox" views of life.

Do you realize that you are, by your unreasonable, narrow and bigoted ideas of life, preparing trouble for your children and sorrow for yourselves?

Of one thing I grow more and more confident of every year I live—that children inherit the suppressed tendencies of their parents.

Every human being, unless he is anemic or hopelessly stupid, feels a desire for some pleasure and distraction outside of the routine of his daily duties.

The young man who decides upon the profession of a clergyman frequently stifles all such natural impulses and desires, regarding them as temptations of the devil.

Suppressed Traits Crop Out

He will not play a social game of cards, he will not dance even a "square" dance in a friend's drawing room; he will not attend a theatre; he will not indulge in games or sports of any kind, lest he be considered worldly and irreligious.

Meanwhile he is fighting against nature continually, and when he becomes a father, his children almost invariably inherit abnormal cravings for pleasure.

As a rule, they break over the traces early in life and become devotees of the worldly enjoyments which the parents have sought to avoid.

I met a young woman not long ago who was about to leave a good home and a husband and child to go upon the stage.

When I endeavored to reason with her I found the matter hopeless.

"I have always been mad over the stage," she said. "I never attended a theatre until after I was married. My father was a cleryman and my early girlhood was barren of pleasure. I was never allowed to dance, to attend theatres or have any games at home. I was hurried into marriage as 'woman's sphere.' Once I was out of my father's home I began to see the world. I at once realised that I was meant for an actress. Now nothing can keep me from fulfilling my destiny."

The young woman was no more born to be a great actress than is any and every full-blooded, pleasure-loving young girl—and if she had been allowed to live a natural, joyous, youthful life she would no doubt have been satisfied with the liberties and powers a happy young matron enjoys in the same sphere.

But she was like the starved man who, when food is placed before him, gorges himself to repletion. The delight every enthusiastic young mind takes over a good bit of comedy or tragedy on the stage she mistook for great talent. What she felt she believed to be the fire of genius instead of the glow of appreciation.

The young girl who from childhood has been accustomed to attending the theatre is rarely "stage struck." It is not from such a class that the "road companies" are recruited, but more frequently from the families of clergymen and strait-laced laymen.

One Sensible Father's Method

I met a clergyman one day who spoke of his son, also a clergyman. I mentioned my theory of the suppressed tendencies which we give our children, and asked him how it happened that his son was an exception to the rule.

"Because I did not suppress my tendencies for natural, normal, wholesome pleasures," he said. "I have always enjoyed life, and allowed my son to do so. I love baseball and began to take him with me to good games when he was a mere lad. I allowed him to dance at social parties in the homes of friends and to attend good plays. As a consequence, he had no terror of the life of a clergyman, and of his own free will choose the profession."

Sensible father!

It is a pity that there are not more like him.

He Was Something of a Sport

But the Bill Clerk Couldn't Mix Enterprise and Horse Sense

By KENNETT HARRIS

"I NEVER seem to get any chance," complained the bill clerk. "If I did, I'd make the most of it, I'll bet you; but I don't."

"The trouble with you, Johnny, is that you want a chance that's labelled in six-inch letters, and that's been trained to eat out of your hand," said the cashier.

"That's a vain hope, fair youth; an idle dream. Good chances are shy and retiring by nature; they wear gum shoes, moreover, and dress inconspicuously."

"I suppose you know all about their habits," sneered the bill clerk. "You've raised 'em from pups ever since you can remember—what?"

"To a certain extent your surmise is correct," answered the cashier.

Passed Up a Sure Thing

"From what you said just now I thought you had to club 'em into insensibility and then sit on 'em," said the bill clerk. "Now you're talking about embracing. Where did you slip up?"

"It makes me feel bad to recall the circumstances; but, if you can benefit from my experience, I'll gladly sacrifice my feelings," said the cashier.

"Well, one time I had a friend who was on Wall Street, and he came to me and wanted to know if I had $50 I wanted to lose sight of for a few hours, providing it returned fifty-fold. He said he had inside information.

"And you were chump enough to let a good thing like that get by you?" asked the bill clerk.

"I did that very thing," replied the cashier. "I had the fifty plunks, too, which makes it all the more remarkable."

"The next morning the stock which was hardly worth its weight in waste paper had soared to a premium," suggested the bill clerk.

"Did it?" asked the cashier. "Do you know, I often wondered. It's quite possible that it did, however, and in that case I'd have made some money, which I might have reinvested in other stocks that yielded enormous profits to speculators at the time. I had all the chance in the world to do it. I had a chance to marry an heiress once."

"Couldn't you have worn smoked glasses?" inquired the bill clerk.

"It wasn't that," said the cashier. "She was fair enough to look upon, and she hadn't a vice that I know of. The trouble with me was that I lacked enterprise and neglected to call on her.

"If I had made her acquaintance, and the acquaintance had ripened into an intimacy, and the intimacy had resulted in mutual love, it is more than probable that my present wife would have married somebody else."

Johnny Is a Game Sport, Too

"Just out of curiosity, I'd like to know where your chance came in," said the bill clerk.

"Just to satisfy you, I'll tell you," said the cashier. "I knew the young woman by sight. I dressed in good taste, and no one could have breathed a word against my character. All I needed was just what I told you—enterprise."

"That's all I need, is it?" asked the bill clerk.

"Well, perhaps you need a little horse sense, and an access of industry, and a trifle of temperance in certain matters, and a proper respect for your elders and superiors wouldn't hurt you," said the cashier.

"Would it give me a chance to be like you?" asked the bill clerk. "Because I wouldn't take it if it did. I'm considerable of a sport, too."

BILLY BUNKIES BETTY IS WEARIN 'EM TOO!
A GOOD RAINY-DAY OUTFIT

The Be ttys are getting ready for airships, and the latest style skirt is the solution of the "mode a la airship."

YOU can see right away what it means. The girls are getting ready for airships. She was going to have to tie her pettiskirts around her ankles when she went out soaring, and little sassy Bettys have a leaning to chewing their tongues and tying knots that a sailor-man couldn't get out with his teeth, and when she lit to shop she'd have to hop around on her two little tied-together feet, like a robin—that and other troubles—you can see!

This is the solution of the "mode a la airship."

There'll be "smart" Bettys and ones that are "hopelessly behind the style, my dear."

And they'll begin killing off the angels for their wings to supply the smart Bettys' demands—till there are fewer angels than there are now; and we like 'em better!

It'll be a good rainy day outfit, too, for the Betty that will still have to pat her adored little feet on the pavement, when she hikes out "walking in the garden."

Oh-h-h and did you know—Billy Bunkie's Betty in 'em!

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

SHOULD MAKE AN EXPLANATION

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am deeply in love with a young man slightly older than myself. He told me that he loved me dearly and that he would be true to me as long as he lived. I saw him one evening last week and went out with him, and on my return home he said he would see me on the following Sunday at a certain pleasure resort, mentioning the place, but no special time. I went there with my girl friend, whom he told me to bring; but, as we did not care to go up to him when he was talking to some of his gentlemen friends, we stood off at a distance. The young man he was with turned and saw us, and as he did so they both walked behind us, and neither looked nor spoke. I know that he was not hurt by my action. I think his friend is the cause of it. I have not seen him since, and would ask for your kind advice in this matter, over which I am broken-hearted.

ONE IN DESPAIR.

HE certainly should explain his conduct, and unless he does so you should have nothing more to do with him. It is possible that his friend keeps him away from you, but if he were loyal to you he would not allow anyone to interfere with your friendship.

WILL COME OUT RIGHT

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a young girl of eighteen years, and am in love with a gentleman twenty-eight years of age. The way he talks, it seems to me that he does not go with other girls. He treats me very kindly, and also has given me two presents. Do you think he loves me? Of all the gentlemen I go with I like him best. Do you think the difference in our ages is too great?

BLUE EYES.

NO, the difference in age is not too great, and if he loves you, little girl, he will tell you so, but you must not be impatient. Let things go on as they are, be nice to him, but don't run after him, and everything will probably turn out as you wish it to.

THE HOUSE NEXT DOOR

CHAPTER XVIII.

Sir John Makes Amends.

It was with a heavy heart that Sir Isaac returned to the anxious group he had left in his drawing room. In his sympathy for his children he had little room for resentment at the pig-headed obstinacy of Sir John. He felt that he had gone to greater lengths in his efforts to make peace than was required of him, but his pity for the old man was so genuine that he could not completely banish a certain admiration which his very obstinacy called forth.

His face bore his ill-tidings as he entered, and neither Lady Margaret nor the children had to ask questions.

"My husband has refused," Lady Margaret said quietly. "I feared it would be so."

"I am sorry. I did all I could," Sir Isaac answered, while the four unhappy sweethearts looked miserably at one another.

"Now, what are we going to do?" Esther demanded.

"I am afraid, my daughter, that you will have to renounce this hope of happiness," Sir Isaac said gently, placing his hand affectionately on her head.

"Don't say that, Sir Isaac," Lady Margaret implored, after a glance into the distressed faces of Ulrica and Cecil. "It does not look very hopeful now, perhaps, but I am sure Sir John will see things in a different light. Things have gone rather badly with him, and just now he feels very bitter."

Sir John Changes His Mind

"I wish I could think it might be different, Lady Margaret," Sir Isaac replied, "but the interview I have just concluded with Sir John was not of a character to encourage hope. I am afraid that there can be no friendship between our houses."

"Oh, father, don't say that," Esther implored.

Sir Isaac put his arm caressingly around his daughter. Adrian sat with his face hidden in his hands. Ulrica and Cecil had arisen with their mother when the butler entered.

"Sir John Cotswold," he announced.

The name had an electric effect on the assemblage. It was almost terrifying to Adrian and Esther; it filled Cecil and Ulrica with uncomfortable forebodings, and Lady Margaret also was not without fear.

"Show Sir John in," Sir Isaac said:

The old baronet entered, pausing for an instant in the doorway to bow gallantly to his wife and daughter and Esther. Sir Isaac's greeting was rather formal.

"Will you be seated, Sir John?" he asked.

"Thank you; not yet," Sir John replied. "I have something to say first. It's bitter; bitter, to find one has been in the wrong for a long time and to have to acknowledge it. But I have come here, to bring my apology to you in person, Sir Isaac."

"Pray say no more, Sir John," Sir Isaac hastened to say. "May we not consider the whole thing ended?"

"Not yet," the old man said, with positiveness. "In the first place I wish to apologize to you for my unmannerly conduct in this room a few days ago, and for my hostility just now. It was—it was unreasonable. I admit it. It was unreasonable."

"I understand how you felt, Sir John and I can readily forgive."

All Ends Well

"But that is not all, sir," Sir John continued, almost angrily. "For years, sir, I have maligned your race—a race that has given England one of her greatest statesmen, some of her ablest writers, and certainly her foremost business men. There are bad qualities in all peoples. The shrewdness of the Jews I learned to my cost; their splendid qualities I have overlooked. I wish to make acknowledgment of that also."

Having delivered himself of this, Sir John bowed again and stood looking at his host. Sir Isaac advanced with extended hands.

"Won't you shake hands, Sir John, and let us consider the foolish enmity between us ended?" he asked again. "Just now we have a matter of more importance to consider than anything which concerns merely ourselves could be."

Sir John, without a moment's hesitation, grasped his hand and shook it heartily.

"There! There! It's done, and I'm glad of it. I've been bitter—unreasonable—but it's all past. Now!"

He beamed upon the assemblage. Ulrica ran to him, threw her arms around his neck and kissed him. Lady Margaret timidly refrained from active demonstration, but her eyes shone, and Esther seized one of his hands. Upon this happy scene entered Lady Jacobson, starting back in mingled fear and surprise when she saw the group.

"Rebecca, I am glad you have come," Sir John said quickly. "Lady Cotswold, my wife. Sir John and the children you have met."

Lady Margaret advanced with outstretched hands and a smile of friendliness. With a gush of feeling Lady Rebecca shook hands with her.

"I am so sorry for the thoughtless things that I have done to make our families hostile," she said.

It was a different Lady Rebecca who said this and much more to the same purpose before Sir Isaac got back to the question for which four of the group were anxiously waiting.

"And now, Sir John," he said, "What about these young people who want to get married, whether we like it or not?"

Sir John fixed his monocle and looked quizzically at the four. He smiled gleefully as he said:

"Certainly! Let them all marry, by all means. Adrian's a fine boy. Esther I've always liked. They'll make good mates for Cecil and Ulrica. I've never been a believer in intermarriage between the races and religions—but—I won't be unreasonable. Get married, all of you!"

THE END.

The Hill o' Dreams

MY grief! for the days by an' done,
When I was a young girl straight an' tall,
Comin' alone at set o' sun
Up the high hill road from Cushendall,
I thought the miles no hardship then,
Nor the road long weary to my feet—
For the thrushes sang in the cool deep glen
An' the evenin' air was cool and sweet.

MY head with many a thought was throng
An' many a dream as I never told;
My heart would lift at a wee bird's song,
Or at seein' a whin-bush crowned with gold.
An' always I'd look back at the say
Or the turn o' the road shut out the sight
Of the long waves curlin' into the bay,
An' breakin' in foam where the sand is white.

I WAS married young on a dacent man,
As many would call a prudent choice,
But he never could hear how the river ran
Singin' a song in a changin' voice,
Nor thought to see on the bay's blue wather
A ship with yellow sails unfurled,
Bearin' away a king's young daughter
Over the brim of the heavin' world.

THE hills seem weary now to my feet,
The miles be's many and dreams be's few,
The evenin' air's not near so sweet,
The birds don't sing as they used to do,
An' I'm that tired at the top of the hill
That I haven't the heart to turn at all
To watch the curlin' breakers fill
The wee round bay at Cushendall.

Some people drink coffee all their lives without discovering the difference between rankness and flavor.

We assure you it is worth buying one can of Chase & Sanborn's Seal Brand to learn how rich, but delicate a thing the flavor of fine coffee really is.

THE MYSTERY OF THE YELLOW ROOM

SYNOPSIS

All Paris was wildly excited over the great mystery of the tragedy of "The Yellow Room," in which an attempt was made to assassinate the beautiful and gifted Mlle. Stangerson.

The facts of the mystery were these:

At the Chateau du Glandier, on the border of the forest of Sainte-Genevieve, about Epinay-sur-Orge, lived Professor Stangerson and his daughter. She and her father were doing there the first scientific work in radiography—labors that served later to open the way for Monsieur and Madame Curie to the discovery of radium.

The laboratory of the Stangersons was in a pavilion about 1,000 feet from the chateau. Adjoining the laboratory was the "Yellow Room," where Mlle. Stangerson slept. The room was a very small one, and was furnished with a fairly large iron bedstead, a small table, a dressing table and two chairs. There was no access to the room except the door opening from the laboratory and one window.

In an attic directly over the "Yellow Room" lived an old servant in the Stangerson family called Daddy Jacques. Monsieur Stangerson slept in the chateau, so that the pavilion was occupied at night only by Mlle. Stangerson and Daddy Jacques.

On the night of the tragedy Mlle. Stangerson worked with her father till midnight and then retired to the Yellow Room. Her father and Daddy Jacques heard her lock the door of the Yellow Room and bolt it from the inside, and the old servant remarked that she must be afraid of "the bete du bon Dieu," which is the name given to a cat owned by an old woman known as Mother Angenoux, who lived nearby.

Shortly after making this remark Daddy Jacques heard the mewing of a cat. At 12:30 o'clock, while Jacques and Monsieur Sanderson were in the laboratory, there were sounds of a terrific struggle in the Yellow Room, and Mlle. Stangerson was heard crying, "Murder! Help!"

Immediately afterward revolver shots rang out, and the sounds of the struggle continued for some time; then all was silence.

Daddy Jacques and Mme. Bernier returned to the laboratory, and the three men finally succeeded in their effort to force the door of the Yellow Room. The room was dark, but a lamp held aloft by Mme. Bernier revealed a startling scene.

Mlle. Stangerson lay on the floor in her nightgown. There were marks on her throat, as if it had been clutched and almost torn with finger nails; and there was a deep wound on the right temple. A revolver that belonged to Daddy Jacques, and which he kept in his attic sleeping room, lay on the floor. Two shots had been fired from it, and it was assumed at the beginning that the bleeding wound in Mlle. Stangerson's temple was a bullet wound.

But there was no sign of the woman's assailant. In some manner he had escaped, although the one window in the room was still secured by closed and bolted shutters, fastened on the inside, and there was no chimney in the place.

The only possible clews discovered were blood-stained marks of a man's large hand on the walls and door; a big handkerchief, red with blood, without any initials; a workman's old cap and the footmarks of a man with large feet, whose bootsoles had left a sort of sooty impression.

The Epoque, a Paris newspaper, sent Joseph Rouletabille, a reporter, to ferret out the mystery. Rouletabille, through his marvellous detective ability, had gotten into newspaper work when he was sixteen years old.

Rouletabille questions the examining magistrate for details of the crime.

"In the Bosom of Wild Nature."

THE Chateau du Glandier is one of the oldest chateaux in the Ile de France, where so many building remains of the feudal period are still standing. Built originally in the heart of the forest, in the reign of Philippe Bel, it now could be seen a few hundred yards from the road leading from the village of Sainte-Genevieve to Montlhery.

A mass of inharmonious structures, it is dominated by a donjon. When the visitor has mounted the crumbling steps of this ancient donjon, he reaches a little plateau where, in the seventeenth century, Georges Philibert de Sequigny, Lord of the Glandier, Maisons-Neuves and other places, built the existing town in an abominably rococo style of architecture.

It was in this place, seemingly belonging entirely to the past, that Professor Stangerson and his daughter installed themselves to lay the foundations for the science of the future. Its solitude, in the depths of woods, was what, more than all, had pleased them.

They would have none to witness their labors and intrude on their hopes, but the aged stones and grand old oaks. The Glandier—ancient Glanderium—was so called from the quantity of glands (acorns) which, in all times, had been gathered in that neighborhood. This land, of present mournful interest, had fallen back, owing to the negligence or abandonment of its owners, into the wild character of primitive nature.

The buildings alone, which were hidden there, had preserved traces of their strange metamorphoses. Every age had left on them its imprint; a bit of architecture with which was bound up the remembrance of some terrible event, some bloody adventure. Such was the chateau in which science had taken refuge—a place seemingly designed to be the theatre of mysteries, terror and death.

Having explained so far, I cannot refrain from making one further reflection. If I have lingered a little over this description of the Glandier, it is not because I have reached the right moment for creating the necessary atmosphere for the unfolding of the tragedy before the eyes of the reader. Indeed, in all this matter, my first care will be to be as simple as is possible.

I have no ambition to be an author. An author is always something of a romancer, and God knows the mystery of The Yellow Room is quite full enough of real tragic horror to require no aid from literary effects. I am, and only desire to be, a faithful "reporter." My duty is to report the event; and I place the event in its frame—that is all. It is only natural that you should know where the things happened.

I return to Monsieur Stangerson. When he bought the estate, fifteen years before the tragedy with which we are engaged occurred, the Chateau du Glandier had a long time been unoccupied. Another old chateau in the neighborhood, built in the fourteenth century by Jean de Belmont, was also abandoned, so that that part of the country was very little inhabited.

A Region Almost Deserted.

Some small houses on the side of the road leading to Corbeil, an inn, called the "Auberge du Donjon," which offered passing hospitality to wagoners; these were about all to represent civilization in this out-of-the-way part of the country, but a few leagues from the capital.

But this deserted condition of the place had been the determining reason for the choice made by Monsieur Stangerson and his daughter. Monsieur Stangerson was already celebrated. He had returned from America, where his works had made a great stir. The book which he had published at Philadelphia on the "Dissociation of Matter by Electric Action" had aroused opposition throughout the whole scientific world. Monsieur Stangerson was a Frenchman, but of American origin. Important matters relating to a legacy had kept him for several years in the United States, where he had continued the work begun by him in France, whither he had returned in possession of a large fortune.

This fortune was a great boon to him: though he might have made millions of dollars by exploiting two or three of his chemical discoveries relative to new processes of dyeing, it was always repugnant to him to use for his own private gain the wonderful gift of invention he had received from nature.

A Girl of Exceeding Beauty.

He considered he owed it to mankind, and all that his genius brought into the world went, by this philosophical view of his duty, into the public lap.

If he did not try to conceal his satisfaction at coming into possession of this fortune, which enabled him to give himself up to his passion for pure science, he had equally to rejoice, it seemed to him, for another cause.

Mademoiselle Stangerson was, at the time when her father returned from America and bought the Glandier estate, twenty years of age. She was exceedingly pretty, having at once the Parisian grace of her mother, who died in giving her birth, and all the splendor, all the riches of the young American blood of her parental grandfather, William Stangerson. A citizen of Philadelphia, William Stangerson had been obliged to become naturalized in obedience to family exigencies at the time of his marriage with a French lady, she who was to be the mother of the illustrious Stangerson. In that way the professor's French nationality is accounted for.

Twenty years of age, a charming blonde, with blue eyes, milk-white complexion and radiant with divine health, Mathilde Stangerson was one of the most beautiful marriageable girls in either the old or new world.

It was her father's duty, in spite of the inevitable pain which a separation from her would cause him, to think of her marriage, and he was fully prepared for it. Nevertheless, he buried himself and his child at the Glandier at the moment when his friends were expecting him to bring her out into society.

Darzac a Persistent Wooer.

Some of them expressed their astonishment, and to their questions he answered: "It is my daughter's wish. I can refuse her nothing. She has chosen the Glandier."

Interrogated in her turn, the young girl replied calmly: "Where could we work better than in this solitude?" For Mlle. Stangerson had already begun to collaborate with her father in his work.

It could not at the time be imagined that her passion for science would lead her so far as to refuse all the suitors who presented themselves to her for over fifteen years. So secluded was the life led by the two, father and daughter, that they showed themselves only at a few official receptions, and, at certain times in the year, in two or three friendly drawing rooms, where the face of the professor and the beauty of Mathilde made a sensation.

The young girl's extreme reserve did not at first discourage suitors, but at the end of a few years they tired of their quest. One alone persisted with tender tenacity and deserved the name of "eternal fiance," a name he accepted with melancholy resignation; that was Monsieur Robert Darzac. Mlle. Stangerson was now no longer young, and it seemed that, having found no reason for marrying at five and thirty, she would never find one.

But such an argument evidently found no acceptance with Monsieur Robert Darzac. He continued to pay his court—if the delicate and tender attention with which he ceaselessly surrounded this woman of five and thirty could be called courtship—in face of her declared intention never to marry.

Preparing for a Wedding

Suddenly, some weeks before the events with which we are occupied, a report—to which nobody attached any importance, so incredible did it sound—was spread about Paris, that Mademoiselle Stangerson had at last consented to "crown" the inextinguishable flame of Monsieur Robert Darzac! It needed that Monsieur Robert Darzac himself should not deny this matrimonial rumor to give it an appearance of truth, so unlikely did it seem to be well founded.

One day, however, Monsieur Stangerson, as he was leaving the Academy of Science, announced that the marriage of his daughter and Monsieur Robert Darzac would be celebrated in the privacy of the Chateau du Glandier, as soon as he and his daughter had put the finishing touches to their report summing up their labors on the "Dissociation of Matter."

CHAPTER V.

In Which Joseph Rouletabille Makes a Remark to Monsieur Robert Darzac Which Produces Its Little Effect.

ROULETABILLE and I had been walking for several minutes by the side of a long wall bounding the vast property of Monsieur Stangerson and had already come within sight of the entrance gate, when our attention was drawn to an individual who, half bent to the ground, seemed to be so completely absorbed in what he was doing as not to have seen us coming toward him.

At one time he stooped so low as almost to touch the ground; at another he drew himself up and attentively examined the wall; then he looked into the palm of one of his hands, and walked away with rapid strides. Finally he set off running, still looking into the palm of his hand. Rouletabille had brought me to a standstill by a gesture.

"Hush, Frederic Larsan is at work! Don't let us disturb him!"

Rouletabille had a great admiration for the celebrated detective. I had never before seen him, but I knew him well by reputation. At that time, before Rouletabille had given proof of his unique talent, Larsan was reputed as the most skilful unraveller of the most mysterious and complicated crimes. His reputation was worldwide, and the police of London, and even of America, often called him in to their aid when their own national inspectors and detectives found themselves at the end of their wits and resources.

No one was astonished, then, that the head of the Surete had, at the outset of the mystery of "The Yellow Room," telegraphed his precious subordinate to London, where he had been sent on a big case of stolen securities, to return with all haste. Frederic, who, at the Surete, was called the "great Frederic," had made all speed, doubtless knowing by experience that, if he was interrupted in what he was doing it was because his services were urgently needed in another direction; so, as Rouletabille said, he was that morning already "at work." We soon found out in what it consisted.

What he was continually looking at in the palm of his right hand was nothing but his watch, the minute hand of which he appeared to be noting intently. Then he turned back, still running, stopping only when he reached the park gate, where he again consulted his watch and then put it away in his pocket, shrugging his shoulders with a gesture of discouragement.

He pushed open the park gate, reclosed and locked it, raised his head and, through the bars, perceived us. Rouletabille rushed after him and I followed. Frederic Larsan waited for us.

"Monsieur Fred," said Rouletabille, raising his hat and showing the profound respect, based on admiration, which the young reporter felt for the celebrated detective, "can you tell me whether Monsieur Robert Darzac is at the chateau at this moment? Here is one of his friends, of the Paris bar, who desires to speak with him."

"I really don't know, Monsieur Rouletabille," replied Fred, shaking hands with my friend, whom he had several times met in the course of his difficult investigations. "I have not seen him."

"The concierges will be able to inform us no doubt?" said Rouletabille, pointing to the lodge, the door and windows of which were close shut.

"Then They Are the Murderers."

"The concierges will not be able to give you any information, Monsieur Rouletabille."

"Why not?"

"Because they were arrested half an hour ago."

"Arrested!" cried Rouletabille; "then they are the murderers!"

Frederic Larsan shrugged his shoulders.

"When you can't arrest the real murderer," he said, with an air of supreme irony, "you can always indulge in the luxury of discovering accomplices."

"Did you have them arrested, Monsieur Fred?"

"Not I!—I haven't had them arrested. In the first place, I am pretty sure that they have not had anything to do with the affair, and then because——"

"Because of what?" asked Rouletabille, eagerly.

"Because of nothing," said Larsan, shaking his head.

"Because there were no accomplices!" said Rouletabille.

"Aha!—you have an idea, then, about this matter?" said Larsan, looking at Rouletabille intently, "yet you have seen nothing, young man—you have not yet gained admission here!"

"I shall get admission."

"I doubt it. The orders are strict."

"I shall gain admission, if you let me see Monsieur Robert Darzac. Do that for me. You know that we are old friends. I beg of you, Monsieur Fred. Do you remember the article I wrote about you on the gold bar case?"

The face of Rouletabille at the moment was really funny to look at. It showed such an irresistible desire to cross the threshold beyond which some prodigious mystery had occurred; it appealed with so much eloquence, not only of the mouth and eyes, but with all its features, that I could not refrain from bursting into laughter.

"Here Is Robert Darzac."

Frederic Larsan, no more than myself, could retain his gravity. Meanwhile, standing on the other side of the gate, he calmly put the key in his pocket. I closely scrutinized him.

He might be about fifty years of age. He had a fine head, his hair turning gray; a colorless complexion, and a firm profile. His forehead was prominent, his chin and cheeks clean shaven. His upper lip, without mustache, was finely chiselled. His eyes were rather small and round, with a look in them that was at once searching and disquieting.

He was of middle height and well built, with a general bearing elegant and gentlemanly. There was nothing about him of the vulgar policeman. In his way, he was an artist, and one felt that he had a high opinion of himself. The sceptical tone of his conversation was that of a man who had been taught by experience. His strange profession had brought him into contact with so many crimes and villainies that it would have been remarkable if his nature had not been a little hardened.

Larsan turned his head at the sound of a vehicle which had come from the chateau and reached the gate behind him. We recognized the cab which had conveyed the examining magistrate and his registrar from the station at Epinay.

"Ah!" said Frederic Larsan, "if you want to speak with M. Robert Darzac he is here."

The cab was already at the park gate, and Robert Darzac was begging Frederic Larsan to open it for him, explaining that he was pressed for time to catch the next train leaving Epinay for Paris. Then he recognized me.

While Larsan was unlocking the gate M. Darzac inquired what had brought me to the Glandier at such a tragic moment. I noticed that he was frightfully pale, and that his face was lined as if from the effect of some terrible suffering.

"She Must Be Saved."

"Is mademoiselle getting better?" I immediately asked.

"Yes," he said. "She will be saved perhaps. She must be saved!"

He did not add "or it will be my death," but I felt that the phrase trembled on his pale lips.

Rouletabille intervened:

"You are in a hurry, Monsieur, but I must speak to you. I have something of the greatest importance to tell you."

Frederic Larsan interrupted:

"May I leave you?" he asked of Robert Darzac. "Have you a key, or do you wish me to give you this one."

"Thank you. I have a key and will lock the gate."

Larsan hurried off in the direction of the chateau, the imposing pile of which could be perceived a few hundred yards away.

Robert Darzac, with knit brow, was beginning to show impatience. I presented Rouletabille as a good friend of mine, but, as soon as he learnt that the young man was a journalist, he looked at me very reproachfully, excused himself, under the necessity of having to reach Epinay in twenty minutes, bowed, and whipped up his horse.

But Rouletabille had seized the bridle and, to my utter astonishment, stopped the carriage with a vigorous hand. Then he gave utterance to a sentence which was utterly meaningless to me.

"The presbytery has lost nothing of its charm, nor the garden its brightness."

The words had hardly left the lips of Rouletabille than I saw Robert Darzac quail. Pale as he was, he became paler. His eyes were fixed on the young man in terror, and he immediately descended from the vehicle in an inexpressible state of agitation.

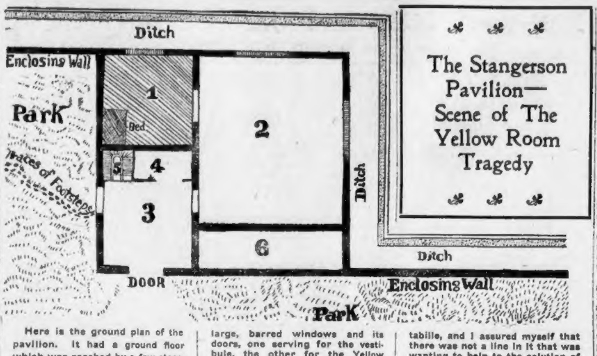
"Come!—Come in!" he stammered.

Then, suddenly, and with a sort of fury, he repeated:

"Let us go, monsieur."

He turned up by the road he had come from the chateau, Rouletabille still retaining his hold on the horse's bridle. I addressed a few words to Monsieur Darzac, but he made no answer. My looks questioned Rouletabille, but his gaze was elsewhere.

To Be Continued in the Sunday American.



The Stangerson Pavilion—Scene of The Yellow Room Tragedy

Here is the ground plan of the pavilion. It had a ground floor which was reached by a few steps, and above it was an attic, with which we need not concern ourselves. The plan of the ground floor only, sketched roughly, is what I here submit to the reader.

1. The Yellow Room, with its one window and its one door opening into the laboratory.
2. Laboratory, with its two large, barred windows and its doors, one serving for the vestibule, the other for the Yellow Room.
3. Vestibule, with its unbarred window and door opening into the park.
4. Lavatory.
5. Stairs leading to the attic.
6. Large and only chimney in the pavilion, serving for the experiments of the laboratory.

The plan was drawn by Rouletabille, and I assured myself that there was not a line in it that was wanting to help to the solution of the problem then set before the police.

With the lines of this plan and the description of its parts before them, my readers will know as much as Rouletabille knew when he entered the pavilion for the first time. With him they may now ask: How did the murderer escape from the Yellow Room?

MUSIC AND MUSICIANS

The only real treat of fine music in town to-day is the "Pop" concert, and only a few more weeks remain of that. A. Maquarre, a prominent member of the Symphony, assumes the baton beginning Monday, and for that evening offers this fetching program:

March, "Lorraine"	Ganne
Overture, "Si j'etais Roi"	Adam
Waltz, "Je t'aime"	Waldteufel
Selection, "Mlle. Modiste"	Herbert
Ballet music, "Sylvia"	Delibes
A Petits Pas	Sudest
Selection, "La Boheme"	Puccini
Marche Joyeuse	Chabrier
Overture, "Le Roi d'Ys"	Lalo
L'Angle Gardien	Pierne
Waltz, "Grubenlichter"	Zeller
March, "Merry Soldiers"	Sabatil

An enjoyable concert was given at Jordan Hall Wednesday afternoon by the orchestra of the New England Conservatory, assisted by advanced students. The quartet from the offertory of Verdi's "Requiem" was given by Miss Stella B. Crane, Miss Ethel M. Keach, Howard Lyman and John J. Mogan. Mr. Lyman was also heard in an aria from the "Creation," and Miss Crane, who has a true, sweet voice in the "Jewel Song," from Faust." Piano numbers were given by Miss Belle Patterson, Miss Vivian Beers, Miss Constance Freeman and an accurate rendition ow a Paganini concerto for violin by Master Maurice Warner.

Mark Twain's talented daughter, Miss Clara Clemens, contralto, has been announced by R. E. Johnston, the concert manager, as one of the attractions for next season.

Friends of Miss Lilla Ormond of Boston will be delighted to hear that she was an immense success in her London concert this week. "Insistently recalled, time and again," the cable says.

An afternoon musicale was given last Tuesday at the town house of T. Jefferson Coolidge, by General and Mrs. George Greene of Beverly.

The graduating exercises of the Faelten school will take place in Huntington Chambers hall, next Tuesday evening. The graduating class of 1909 follows: Misses Catherine M. Cazale, Anna E. Faelten, Alice Fortin, Laura E. Grant, Myrtle L. Jordan, Laura L. Martin, Anna E. McKee, Edith M. Rich, Bertha M. Snow, Mabel C. Stone, Esther M. Whittredge, Anne H. Winchester, George S. Barrett, John B. Currie.

The Guckenberger School of Music will hold graduating exercises in Steinert Hall, June 14, 16 and 18.

A vocal recital will be given in Steinert Hall, June 15, by the pupils of F. E. Morse.

At the last meeting of the Handel and Haydn Society the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: William F. Bradbury, president; Frederick Long, vice-president; Leslie K. Storrs, secretary; M. G. Daniel, treasurer; Frank M. Leavitt, librarian; E. W. Bancroft, J. C. Brodhead, G. M. Brooks, C. A. Call, Robert Entwhistle, W. W. Eustis, S. L. Hills and H. F. Odell, directors.

One of the last regular recitals at the New England Conservatory was scheduled for this afternoon in Recital Hall, when Miss Hortense Drummond sang Franz's "Im Herbst," Wesley Howard, the aria "My Soul Is Athirst for God," by Gaul. Walter Lowe and Henry Andrews were heard in violin solos and Misses Janet Gemmell, Edith Chapman, Ella Dyer, Viola Brown, Hazel Phillips and Lili Hesbach in piano solos.

Franklin L. Whyte, the vocal instructor, sailed for Europe on June 9, to be gone until October 1.

Miss Robbins's pupils will submit a recital program of piano music at Steinert Hall, on Saturday, June 19.

Richard Czerwonky, the violinist, is back at his Boylston street studio. He has just concluded a short but very busy season through the middle West as conductor of the Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra.

Abbott Prescott, vocal teacher, of Newbury street, a pupil of Sbriglia, the renowned Paris instructor, will sail June 16 for a trip through Southern Europe.

The annual meeting of the Oliver Ditson Society, which was established through the munificence of the late Mr. Ditson, for the relief of needy and disabled musicians, was held at the Ditson residence, when the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: Arthur Foote, president; Allen Parker Browne, G. W. Chadwick, Charles H. Ditson, trustees; Charles F. Smith, clerk and treasurer.

What Rats Cost the United States

THE rat is believed to be the worst mammalian pest known to man. Not only does it destroy property worth millions of dollars every year, but it is now known to be the principal agent in disseminating bubonic plague. This is not a contagious disease in the ordinary sense. The infection is spread from rat and from rat to man, solely by means of the rat flea.

The United States Department of Agriculture, through its Biological Survey, has recently given the rat problem serious attention.

There are several species of rats, but the common house or barn rat, the so-called "Norway rat," is the most widespread and by far the most destructive. By means of ships it has been carried to almost every part of the world.

The rat's bill of fare includes almost everything eaten by man, and a considerable number of things not included in human dietaries.

Among the most foods of rats are corn and other grain. If fed on grain alone, it is estimated that one rat will eat 60 cents' worth in a year, while of oatmeal it will consume $1.80 worth. If we suppose the number of rats in the United States to be equal to the number of horses, cattle, sheep and hogs, it would cost more than $100,000,000 a year to board them on grain.

But the damage done by rats is not to be measured by what they eat. Through pollution of food products they do as much damage as by eating them. Besides, they do great damage by digging under buildings and embankments, by gnawing woodwork, by cutting holes in sacks and by cutting up goods and papers to make nests.

They kill young poultry and squabs. They steal eggs. They frequently destroy the nests of wild birds. They have been known to gnaw holes in lead pipes and they cause fires by gnawing the insulating covering from electric wires where they pass under the floors or inside partitions. They also cause fires by carrying and gnawing matches.

An attempt has been made to secure from the business men of Washington, D. C., estimates of the annual losses due to rats and mice. The data secured indicate losses exceeding $200,000.

The rapidity with which rats multiply is the main reason why man appears to make so little headway in their destruction.

More than twenty young rats have been found in a single nest, and it is safe to estimate the average litter at more than ten.

It has been calculated that a single pair of rats and their progeny breeding without interruption and suffering no losses would in three years increase to more than 20,000,000.

The author of the Agricultural Department Bulletin says hawks and owls, especially the latter, destroy great numbers of rats, a good work which man should encourage. Weasels, minks and skunks are also rat destroyers.

He recommends the persistent use of traps and poisons. But he thinks the most promising lines of effort lie in (1) rat-proof construction of buildings, especially the use of concrete in foundations; and (2) reducing the food supply of rats by the disposal of garbage and the protection of food supplies.

Just for the Fun of It

SHE was surprised when she heard of the engagement, and she showed it.

"Why, I was perfectly satisfied in my own mind that you liked Tom better than George," she said.

"Well, to tell the truth, I did," replied the engaged girl.

"But you say you are engaged to George?"

"Yes, that's true."

"Well, I don't understand it at all."

"Why, it's very simple. You see, George was the one who proposed."

SOCIETY AT IDYLLIC HELEN THOMAS BRIDAL

By ELIZABETH ELLIOTT.

It would be impossible to imagine a more ideal setting for a wedding than the beautiful summer home of the Washington B. Thomases at Pride's Crossing, where the marriage was solemnized yesterday of the older daughter of the house, Miss Helen, and the wealthy young clubman, Samuel Warren, Jr.

It is truly an idyllic spot, the great rambling mansion overlooking the sea and the shrubbery and flowers in fullest bloom. It was a rainy day, but it made little difference to the gayly gowned guests, who, after the ceremony, flocked out to the piazza and on to the beautiful terrace where the tables were laid for the breakfast.

The winsome little blonde bride in her gown of white satin and rare old point lace was attended by her pretty sister Margaret, whose filmy gown of pale green chiffon, trimmed with gold lace, showed off to the best possible advantage her beautiful tropical coloring. She wore a large black picture hat and carried a bouquet of mauve orchids.

The ceremony was performed in the large music room, and at its conclusion, instead of going directly out, the bride and groom stood in front of the improvised altar and received their congratulations and felicitations.

First to kiss the bride was her sister and after that she was so besieged by the young girls present that I feared for all that bridal finery.

Mr. Warren, who, on his way to the wedding, was held up for overspeeding, will sail with his young bride to-day for Europe on the Canopic and they will no doubt have a rousing send-off. The bride's going-away gown is of dark blue chiffon cloth and her hat a large black one trimmed with ribbon velvet.

Among the guests at the wedding were Mrs. Wirt Dexter, just home from Europe and looking especially well in a close-fitting gown of corn colored satin; Mrs. John Thayer, in pale gray chiffon, and her two attractive debutante daughters, Nora and Evelyn, both in white.

The bride's mother, who is one of the most beautiful of our fashionable matrons, was in dark blue satin trimmed with rich black lace and a large black hat.

Mrs. Warren, mother of the groom, was looking radiantly happy. Her gown was of white satin and over it she wore a long coat of black lace. Her hat was also of black. Miss Katherine Warren, the groom's sister, who has just returned from a Winter in Europe, was in a exquisitely dainty gown of white embroidered mull.

The stately and picturesque Marie Lee was in black chiffon and large black hat and was with Miss Lillian Cotton who was in lavender. Mrs. Gardner Bradley, the groom's sister, who came on from her home in Philadelphia, was handsome in yellow satin and black hat.

A very attractive wedding will take place to-day in Christ Church, Cambridge, when Miss Laura Toppan of Highland avenue, Cambridge, will become the wife of Benjamin Hurd. The bride will wear creamy white satin elaborately trimmed with cream lace. She will carry lilies of the valley and a wreath of orange blossoms will fasten her exquisite white veil.

Miss Helen Page, the flower girl, will wear white muslin, while the maid of honor, Miss Margaret White, and the bridesmaid, Miss Harriet Tarr, will be gowned in pink. The floral decorations will be exceptionally beautiful, a profusion of pink and white blossoms.

Dr. Prescott Evarts, the rector of Christ Church, will perform the ceremony, and Stephen Dorr will attend the groom as best man. The ushers will be F. W. Fuller, George Walcott, Charles S. Tillinghast, Dr. John Rockwell, F. Abbott Goodhue, E. Skitwith Bruce, Charles F. Toppan and Roswell Parish.

About 400 guests will be present to witness the solemnizing of the marriage. The church ceremony will be followed by a large reception and breakfast at the home of the bride's mother on Highland street.

Many prominent society folks, now at the North Shore, availed themselves of the opportunity extended by Mrs. Lucius Manlius Sargent to meet her charming and attractive daughters, Ruth and Esther. The handsomely appointed music room at the Sargent home was quite well filled with richly gowned women. Mrs. Sargent wore black lace and large hat. Mrs. Greene an empire gown of white with old point lace, and the daughters were in blue and green empire gowns. Among those noted were Mrs. F. R. Sears, Jr., Mrs. David P. Kimball, Mrs. John C. Gray, Mrs. John Balch, Mrs. Robert Williams, Miss Katherine Loring, Mrs. Dillon Bronson, Mrs. Charles Whitney, Mrs. Russell Gray, Mrs. Paul B. Watson, Mrs. J. B. Livermore, Miss Mary Whitney, Mrs. David Horton and her daughter Marporie.

Upon the departure for Europe of Count von Bernstorff, the German Ambassador, the embassy will be moved to Beverly Farms for the Summer.

HOW HE MANAGED

A MAN in an up-State county owns a number of horses, and has a great reputation for skill in the treatment of them. One day a farmer who wanted some valuable information approached the horse-owner's little boy and said:

"Look here, my little man, when one of your father's horses is ill, what does he do?"

"Do you mean slightly ill, or seriously ill?" asked the boy, cautiously.

"Oh, seriously ill," said the farmer.

"Because," said the child, "if a horse is only slightly ill, he gives it medicine; but if it is seriously ill he sells it."

WALL STREET NEWS OF INTEREST TO INVESTORS

WALL STREET, New York, June 12.—The market has become active and strong, following further announcement from Paris that there has been no hitch in the listing of the Steel shares. The announcement is also made that Lackawanna will declare a cash dividend in connection with the readjustment of its business to conform with the Supreme Court decision on the commodity law.

$ $ $

Trade reports are universally good. The Steel Trust let it be known that 80 per cent. of its capacity is now in operation. Pig iron makers report operations on the basis of 23,000,000 tons for the year. The United States Rubber Company reports business about 30 per cent. better than a year ago. Copper metal is held strong at 13⅝ cents bid for electrolytic.

Sudden strength of Southern Pacific has led to a weird rumor that Union Pacific would not convert its Southern Pacific preferred into common stock, but would accept $20 a share cash and take bonds. This rumor, if based on fact, would be a severe blow to the standing of Southern Pacific in the market, because it would indicate a lack of confidence in the stock on the part of Union Pacific. The conversion of Southern Pacific preferred into common is a bull argument. It means the removal of a 7 per cent. preferred issue, and, therefore, puts the common closer to an increased dividend.

Lackawanna directors refused to say how much of a cash dividend would be paid in connection with the readjustment of finances. The plan to be adopted provides for organization of a company to purchase all the coal lands, the stock to be distributed to Lackawanna shareholders. The chief bullish feature of this plan lies in the fact that it will give Wall Street two stocks instead of one to represent the Lackawanna property and return the issue to the list of popular trading shares.

$ $ $

Persistent rumors regarding the alleged failure of the plan to list Steel in Paris reflects little credit on the authors. The original report of this listing came from from the office of J. P. Morgan & Co. in Wall Street, and it is fair to assume that Morgan & Co. would not make such a report public until certain that it was true. Morgan would not permit the shares to be put in a secondary position in Paris. Should the reports of failure in Paris prove true, it would be a severe blow to the standing of Steel shares in the market, because it would prove that Morgan had lost his influence abroad. It would be the most important defeat of his financial career, and he is not acting like a defeated financier.

New York bankers are beginning to realize that Harriman is in Europe for something besides his health. Not only does he have the secretary of his railroad company and his official press agent with him, but Otto H. Kahn, one of the Union Pacific bankers, now announces his early departure for Europe. Harriman seems to be assembling his official family for some important event.

Return of George Westinghouse from abroad was followed by an advance in the stock market of General Electric and Westinghouse Electric. Both of these companies have the promise of very important business, and their prosperity is the keynote to the copper metal market, which is very strong. Atchison's high record was made on reports that the dividend would be increased to 6 per cent. Union Pacific was considered absurdly low as a 10 per cent. stock, with Atchison at 117 on a 5 per cent. basis. The advance in Virginia-Carolina Chemical is due also to dividend hopes, which are expected to materialize within the next ten days. The same reason is given for the strength of Beet Sugar and American Cotton Oil.

Brokers report material liquidation of standard bonds by the banks in anticipation of calls for cash from the West as soon as the heavy crop-moving period arrives. The Winter wheat crop alone will be worth $500,000,000, and within two weeks a movement of cash to the West must be expected. The known movements of money for the week indicate a cash gain by the banks of more than $8,000,000.

$ $ $

Actual shipments for goods sold in footwear and mechanical lines of the United States Rubber Company show an increase varying from 25 per cent. to 35 per cent. over last year. The tire business has increased so rapidly at the Detroit, Hartford and Indianapolis plants as to make it necessary to put on large additions. These plants are doing a business 200 per cent. in excess of what it was in the same period last year. The company is planning for a still greater increase in production.

For the last two years the shareholders of the United States Rubber Company have increased at the rate of 300 to 400 every quarter.

The United States Rubber Company is in a very strong position from the standpoint of raw supplies. Although crude rubber is advancing rapidly, the United States Rubber Company was fortunate enough to lay in very large supplies when the product was selling at much lower prices.

$ $ $

Reports from Washington on the tariff situation are favorable from the stock market point of view, as there is promise of delay in presenting the measure to the President for his signature. For that reason the technical position of the market is very strong just now. The best opinion seems to be that whatever reaction comes with the signing of the tariff bill will be only temporary, and the inside interests are planning to take advantage of it to pick up stocks. If anybody is being fooled in regard to the persistence and solidity of the present advance of the market it is the big people. The only doubts come from small traders.

$ $ $

While the silver bullion trade does not generally anticipate any notable advance in the near future the conditions of a fairly stable market are no doubt present.

One of the favoring conditions to help the outlook is the advent of a strong American banking syndicate as a factor in floating Chinese Government loans. Although such financing has no direct relation to the currency system, still the introduction of fresh capital for imperial development in that country must at least have some direct influence upon the monetary progress. With the expansion of trade and the multiplication of industries the demand for more currency will be as natural there as elsewhere. It is reasonable, therefore, to expect that in due time the expansion in China will show a perceptible improvement in the demand for silver.

TO-DAY'S STOCK MARKETS

SHORTS RUSH UNDER COVER

By T. C. SHOTWELL.

NEW YORK, June 12.—Aggressive buying of Steel common just before the close of the market to-day frightened many of the shorts to cover and promoted aggressive buying in some of the minor specialties, so that the final figures were around the best of the day. Little steel on the final movement gained about a point.

Trading was rather listless compared with the activity of the first part of the week. Prices opened up, but found a fair amount of stocks offering, both from the bear element and the profit takers. However, when the bears tried to force a general decline around the end of the first hour by offering stocks a point or so down, supporting orders were forthcoming in a volume that baffled them. Heaviness had ruled in the latter part of the session.

MASS MINING ONLY FEATURE

STATE STREET, June 12.—Noon—A short covering movement in Mass mining was about the only thing to attract attention in the local stock market during this forenoon's two-hours session. In this operation the price was marked to 10, but on the culmination of the buying the price reacted to 9½ again. Butte Coalition was in some demand, causing the price to stiffen to 27. North Butte was quiet, although firm, and the price reached 60.

It is still believed that accumulation of North Butte stock has been going on and that strong interests have almost acquired a controlling interest in this property. Amalgamated was very quiet and showed only a slight change, although firm in tone.

American Pneumatic Securities came to the fore this forenoon and the common stiffened to 9⅝, while the preferred sold up from 20 to 21¼. Favorable developments are expected shortly in this company's future. There was activity in both issues. General Electric touched better than 164, but activity in the stock was confined to the New York list. American Telephone yielded fractionally on freer offering of the stock. U. S. Steel held firm and advanced fractionally.

Curb prices were inclined to sag. The feature was a 10-cent advance in Southwestern Development to 35 cents on active trading. Davis-Daly, First National and Ohio Copper all declined slightly. Chino eased off to 7⅛.

HURLED FROM WAGON.

William O'Donnell, nineteen years of age, of No. 3 Dallas place, Roxbury, was hurled from a milk wagon and badly bruised today when his horse ran away. The runaway crashed into a city garbage team, but the driver of that wagon escaped unhurt.

BIG DEALS IN REALTY IN SUBURBS

Several important and valuable suburban properties were included in the report of sales in the real estate market to-day.

In Roxbury the large estate at the corner of No. 81 Walnut avenue, corner of Rockland street, comprising a large frame house and 18,000 square feet of land, assessed for a total of $12,000, have been sold by William S. Messinger to William H. Reed, Jr. The land is rated for $9,000.

The three-story brick house and 1,220 square feet of land, taxed on a total valuation of $4,100, at No. 10 Millmont street, near Highland street, Roxbury, have been sold by Rachel B. Vaughan to Ada Kribitsky et al., title passing through William T. Every and Edwin S. Woodbury et al., trustees. The land is assessed for $600.

In Dorchester the frame house and 5122 square feet of land at No. 48 Charlotte street, near Bradshaw street, have been sold by Ingwal B. Jacobson et ux., to C. M. Akerman. The property is taxed for a total of $7500, of which $2000 is on the land.

John Baremfeind has sold to Dennis Shea the frame house and 1930 square feet of land at No. 136 Marcella street, near Centre street, Roxbury. This estate is taxed for $2800, of which $800 is on the land.

In West Roxbury the three frame houses and 9699 square feet of land, at Nos. 6 to 12 School street, near Walnut avenue, assessed for a total of $10,000, have been sold by Lillian T. Nutting to Harris Perlman. The land is rated for $5000.

In the same suburb the frame house and 6777 square feet of land, at No. 58 Rockview street, near Perley avenue, and assessed for a total of $7400, have been oold by James H. Pickering to Hattie E. Patterson. The land is taxed for $2400.

Clarence E. Tuttle has sold to Cecilia Barrows a plot of 4710 square feet of land, taxed for $1400, on Robinson avenue, West Roxbury.

Rachel Lary has sold to the Evangelical Lutheran Bethlehem Church a plot of 7156 square feet of land, taxed for $800, at the corner of Kittridge and Clifton streets, West Roxbury.

The Chapin Farm Agency has sold for C. S. Perkins, his home farm on the Biddeford road, Kennebunkport, Me., comprising 200 acres of land, a 2-story, 12-room farm house with open fireplaces, a large hay and stock barn and several poultry houses, with a fruit orchard. The propety was sold to Chales Bowdoin of Kennebunkpot, Me., who buys for occupancy, and has already taken possession.

HAVING RED HAIR, PRISONER GOES FREE

KANSAS CITY, June 12.—Fred Jones was arraigned before Municipal Judge Harry G. Kyle, charged with having robbed his roommate. There was no evidence except the statement of the accuser and the defendant. "I believe your story, though you're the only one to tell it," said Judge Kyle after Jones had made his statement. "Your red hair is your salvation. During the three years that I have presided over this court I have had only six red-haired men before me. None was found guilty. You may go."

BOSTON FINANCIERS TO REBUILD CHELSEA

A new building enterprise, backed largely by Boston capitalists, has been started, with a view to erecting moderate priced tenements in the burned district of Chelsea. At the present time there is a scarcity of these tenements in Chelsea. It is the intention of those interested in the proposition to purchase land in the East Side district large enough to build up a neighborhood, and to extend it as far back in the direction of the creek as possible, and they hope to bring back many families who are anxious to return.

BODIES OF MOB'S VICTIMS RIDDLED

COLUMBIA, S. C., June 12.—Frank Samuels and Quillie Simmons, negroes, suspected of the assassination and robbery of J. B. Smoak at Smoak station, were taken from the county jail by a mob of a hundred men and hanged to a tree. The bodies were riddled with buckshot. The evidence against the negroes is said to have been convincing, and one of them had partly confessed their guilt.

HARRIMAN IN GRAVE PERIL FROM HEART

NEW YORK, June 12.—News from England to-day was to the effect that E. H. Harriman is undergoing treatment in London for grave organic trouble, reported to be a complication of heart and kidney trouble.

It is said that a noted London specialist examined the American financier's case and the reports of Mr. Harriman's malady are based on his diagnosis.

This physician mentioned the case at a recent clinic, according to a student who was there. The subject of Mr. Harriman's physical condition is interesting many Americans in London. There is little doubt expressed that Mr. Harriman's affliction is of a serious nature and that it has been much aggravated by excessive overwork and nervous trouble.

The nervous disorder was aided by his recent Mexican trip, but the more serious malady remained. American financiers, questioned as to the most probable successor of Mr. Harriman, should ill health compel him to retire, all named Edwin Hawley.

BATTLESHIP IN 24-HOUR TEST

The battleship Michigan, which to-day left Provincetown on her twenty-four-hour endurance test, is the queen of all battleships.

In the most remarkable performance of any battleship ever built for this or any other country, the American Dreadnought developed a higher rate of speed on 5,000-horsepower less than any other ship, and with less coal consumption.

She made the record in a high speed test at sea over the Rockland course. The official figures were to-day sent to the naval department at Washington.

The highest speed attained in the four hours' run (unofficial) was 19.50 knots. The average speed was 18.95 knots.

The big battleship got away from Provincetown to-day at 9:50 o'clock (unofficial) on her twenty-four-hour test. This test is an endurance exhibition of her engines. By the time that she finishes at 9:50 to-morrow morning it is thought she will be off the Virginia coast. Her officers believe that she will smash all records.

The performance by the Michigan in her one hour and four tests is the more remarkable because of the fact that the battleship is the first of her class to take her official trials without preliminary trying out by the builders.

HARRIMAN BUYS AN ELECTRIC ROAD

SAN FRANCISCO, June 12.—In pursuing the plan for the acquirement of mountain power rights and the construction and control of electric railways in California, E. H. Harriman has bought from Henry E. Huntington the electric power and electric road properties in and around the town of Fresno. The consideration as approximately as can be ascertained is $2,000,000, payable part in cash and part in Southern Pacific Company 4 per cent. bonds. One of the properties purchased is the plant of the San Joaquin Power Company in the mountains east of Fresno. Another property is the Fresno electric traction system, consisting of about twenty-two miles of road.

SEE DEFEAT FOR ALDRICH

WASHINGTON, June 12.—The action of the Senate in postponing until June 18 further consideration of the income tax amendment to the tariff bill will enable Senator Aldrich practically to complete consideration of the measure before the Bailey-Cummins proposition is taken up. This has been his purpose from the start, and after repeated efforts he has succeeded in getting the matter deferred until all the schedules have been acted upon.

The advocates of the tax have reached an agreement upon a form of amendment which all will support, and if they can command as many votes as they predict Senator Aldrich will meet his first defeat on the bill next Thursday.

When the Senate met to-day consideration of the tariff was resumed. Senator Overman of North Carolina made a general attack on the bill, scoring the general industrial combinations, particularly the Tennessee Coal and Iron Company.

LINKS BOSTON, LATIN AMERICA

EL PASO, Tex., June 12.—Bradley W. Palmer, a Boston lawyer, who brought about the merger of all Mexican railroads and is a director in the national lines, has just returned from a trip to Central America. He declares concessions have been secured in the name of William P. Tiedel for a railroad from the Mexican frontier entirely across Guatemala, Salvador and Nicaragua. Such a line will put New York and Boston in direct rail communication with the three most important Central American States.

Bradley W. Palmer, Harvard man and member of the law firm of Storey, Thorndike, Palmer & Thayer in the Exchange building, left Boston three months ago to secure concessions for Central American railroads from the Boston border. Boston capital is largely interested in the new project. Mr. Palmer is on his way back to Boston.

Particulars of the concessions secured have not reached his Boston office, but confirmation has come of the success of his undertakings in Central America.

BIG DECREASE IN OUTPUT OF LUMBER

WASHINGTON, June 12.—There has been a big decrease in the production of lumber in the United States, according to a report issued by the Census Bureau today. The figures for 1908 show a falling off from the previous year of 17.3 per cent., or from 40,256,154,000 feet to 33,289,360,000 feet.

WEEKLY DANCES ON CHURCH PROGRAM

ATLANTA, Ga., June 12.—Dancing to piano music is to be a weekly diversion of young people in the First Universalist Church. "I consider dancing an innocent and healthful amusement," says the Rev. E. Dean Ellenwood. "I do not believe in letting the devil have all the good things."

SUGAR TRUST HEADS IN FEAR

NEW YORK, June 12.—The appearance in New York of J. H. Graves and A. Rodestrom, deputy attorneys-general, gave rise to the idea that the Federal Government is about to take up the case of the sugar trust looking to a criminal prosecution of the directors.

In legal and political circles it was pointed out that the circumstances surrounding the settlement the trust made on the advice of counsel with the Pennsylvania Sugar Company in the latter's $30,000,000 suit would greatly assist such a prosecution.

Under these circumstances and taking into consideration the facts that the President's brother, Henry W. Taft, is counsel for the trust, and that Attorney General Wickersham is a member of the Henry W. Taft law firm, politicians said that the government would not dare to whitewash the trust.

If it attempted any such thing, it was said, the whole Department of Justice would be brought into contempt and disrepute, and the second term which backers of Mr. Taft are working for would be imperilled.

RUIN CHURCH FOR REVENGE

LEETONIA, O., June 12.—A tremendous dynamite explosion wrecked the First Presbyterian Church here. One entire wall of the church is gone. The interior is a mass of splinters.

The dynamiting is supposed to have been the work of bootleggers, who are said to have threatened revenge on the Rev. Joseph L. Grimm, the Presbyterian pastor, for his activity in prosecuting anti-saloon violations. No arrests have been made, but Sheriff W. B. Davidson with a squad of deputies, reached here early today.

The explosive which was used was evidently placed within a window on the north side of the building facing the street. It was the second outrage since Leetonia went "dry," the first attempt being made on the home of Samuel Fultz, a prominent anti-saloon worker. In that case the partially burned fuse became detached before an explosion occurred.

KINGSTON BANK GOES TO WALL

PROVIDENCE, R. I., June 12.—The Kingston Savings Bank at Kingston, R. I., was closed by order of Bank Commissioner Goodwin.

Serious losses suffered by the failure of the banking firm of E. H. Gay & Co. of Boston are given as the cause of the bank's condition. Commissioner Goodwin believes that the depositors will all be paid in full.

According to the last annual report of the bank, the deposits were $296,343.49 and the surplus $20,000. Among the assets were railroad and terminal bonds and equipment notes, $42,034.20; electric and street railroad, gas, electric light and power bonds, $102,890, and loans on real estate mortgages, $95,932.67.

NANTASKET BEACH

Make preparations now to live in your own cottage at the beach instead of paying board or rent. Let us show you the finest development of seashore property ever accomplished in New England. Excellent streets, cement sidewalks in front of every lot, with unsurpassed boating, bathing and fishing at your very door.

Look this up quickly before this season begins. You will never regret it. Our agent will show you this property today and every day this week. Take the 2:20 boat which leaves Rowes Wharf for Nantasket each day. This advertisement, if presented to our agent at Rowes Wharf ten minutes before the 2:20 boat leaves for Nantasket, will entitle you to a free ride to Kenberma Park any afternoon this week and Sunday.

BOSTON AMERICAN

80 AND 82 SUMMER ST., BOSTON, JUNE 12, 1909.

Aldrich, NOT Taft, Is the Captain

Franklin MacVeagh, Secretary of the Treasury, recently sought to draw indivious contrast between the Roosevelt and the Taft administrations.

Secretary MacVeagh said that the great feature of the present administration was a determined and fixed purpose toward regularity and legality of procedure. There would be no surrender along that line, he said.

But, meantime, the administration has surrendered to Senator Aldrich!

It cannot be denied that the chief figure in the Republican party, at this time, is Senator Aldrich. He is as powerful in this day as Senator Mark Hanna was in his day. The Senator from Ohio was regarded as the chief man in the McKinley regime. And the Senator from Rhode Island is even more positive in his leadership.

It is idle to try to show that the man failing to lead—failing to control—is the notable and virtuous figure. The leader is not Mr. Taft. He is Senator Aldrich on account of the plain little reason that Aldrich is the boss.

Whatever may be said about Colonel Roosevelt—whatever the opinions may be about his public services—whether his work was good or bad in its influence—the fact always stood out that he was the captain. And it is the man who is unquestionably the captain that is looked to by the people. Mr. Taft in this tariff matter is not even the first mate.

To be sure, it does not follow that strength of leadership is for the best. It may be directed entirely to the bad.

We do not approve of the course of Senator Aldrich. We believe that his leadership is not good. Nevertheless, he is the captain, and he is so regarded by the country, and Mr. Taft is in the position of a man who has resigned the mastery—resigned the captaincy of a cause peculiarly his own.

In its general average the Payne House tariff bill was higher than the existing law. According to Mr. Payne's own figures, the House bill raised the tax on luxuries and necessities combined from 44.16 to 45.72. According to Senator Aldrich's own figures, the Senate bill will leave the necessities about where they are, from the standpoint of the general average, but he has raised the equivalent ad valorem tax on luxuries from 52.07 to 55.49.

There is no visible prospect of any material reduction in the tariff on the things to wear, either for men, women or children, with the single exception of shoes.

The conference of the two houses will have jurisdiction only of the things in dispute between the two legislative branches. Therefore, it may be put down as a moral certainty that the tariff bill which will be adopted in conference and sent to President Taft for his signature will contain, on an average, higher rates than the existing law.

Mr. Taft, according to Washington advices, while displeased with the existing tariff situation, is privately expressing confidence that a satisfactory bill will be fixed up in conference. There appears to be no basis for such hope. Has Mr. Taft been hypnotized by Senator Aldrich, or is it possible that Mr. Taft is prepared to approve as "satisfactory" a bill which will be a virtual repudiation of the party's platform promise and the President's own pledge?

Not the Empire, but the People

Balfour talks about an Armageddon. And the most pitiful thing in the world is a great empire in a panic. The panic of grand and mighty Rome when the Goths came was pitiful. And the panic of Britain when no one comes is worse than pitiful. It is awful.

Who is attacking Britain? Where is the enemy? No one knows. The leaders of that decadent empire are talking and screaming like dipsomaniacs.

But there is historical reason in their madness. Britain must go as all empires have gone. Empire never has lasted. The price of it is national death. Confronted with national death British statesmen squeal.

They howl for more fleets. They cry for greater armies. Who is the invader? They don't know. It is only the dissolution that has come in the laws of human life since the beginning.

Alexander's empire fell. Babylon fell. Persia and Media fell. Assyria fell. Rome fell. Byzantium fell. Spain fell. And before the measured tread of invading Fate the empire of Britain is falling!

Panic struck, they try to increase armies and armadas. It is useless. Like the Old Guard at Waterloo, they charge in name only.

It is a spectacle that turns nations to introspection.

The only way to exist is by virtue. Those who use the sword shall not only perish by the sword, but by its shadow.

Britain is panic struck under the shadow of the awful weapon of Fate.

What a lesson! And yet all history tells this lesson. History is nothing more than the record of the death of empire.

And the death does not come from without, but from within. Rome fell because its people were weary of the burden of a grafting state that reaped where it had not sowed. Better the barbarian than the merciless taxgatherer.

America should observe this lesson. It should observe it with dignity. Let it be looked upon with sorrow. But how can imperial America at last escape the scythe of the Grim Reaper of Empires?

The American—this newspaper—has striven to point the mighty moral that the rulers and the statesmen should consider not the empire, but the people.

LETTERS FROM AMERICAN READERS

"SUCCESS AFTER FAILURE"

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

Those letters on from "Success After Failure," by the Rev. Mr. Gregory, which are published in the AMERICAN, are very interesting and should be read, cut out and pasted in a scrap book, so that we may read and ponder over what those who have risen from failure to success have endured before they ever reached the goal of their ambition and hope.

MAX HENRY NEWMAN.

Boston, June 9, 1909.

THE REVISED DECLARATION OF INDEPENDENCE

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

I perceive by your editorial on the wheat corner that you are still in the outer darkness of obsolete Americanism. I fear you have not sufficiently pondered the revised version of the Declaration of Independence: "We hold these truths to be self-evident: That all men are created unequal, some being born with spurs on their heels and others with saddles on their backs; that property is endowed by its creators with certain natural, inalienable, indefeasible, imprescriptible rights; that among these rights are to take bread from the hungry, clothing from the naked, to increase and multiply and dominate; that to secure these rights governments are instituted over men, the supreme end of the laws being to confirm the rich in their possessions and to keep in due bonds of subjection the unworthy poor; that when a government becomes subversive of this end it is the right, it is the duty of property to secure a return to safe and sane polity by persuasion, or force, or fraud, or purchase, or any effective means."

THE LANDLORD SAYS HE WON'T PAINT OUR FENCE!
YOU GO RIGHT BACK AND MAKE HIM PAINT IT!
MY WIFE SAYS THAT FENCE NEEDS PAINTING PRETTY BAD!
WELL I WON'T PAINT IT, AND THAT SETTLES IT!
HE SAYS HE WON'T, LOVE!
YOU JUST TELL HIM I SAID IT'S GOT TO BE DONE!
MY WIFE SAID—
WHAT IN THUNDER DO I CARE WHAT SHE SAID!
IT'S NO USE, LOVE, HE JUST WON'T DO IT!
HE WON'T EH!! JUST WAIT TILL I SEE HIM!
TEE-HEE!
WHEN ARE YOU GOING TO PAINT THAT FENCE!!
RIGHT AWAY, MRS. HEN-PECKO!

SOMETHING was said in this column a little time since in regard to the debt of obligation which the employer owes to his employe.

That is, however, but one aspect of the question.

All live questions have two sides, and sometimes a great deal more than two.

Even if the workman does not always owe it to his employer to render him his best possible service, he always owes it to himself to render such best possible service.

A man can never afford to do anything less than his best. We either rise or gravitate to the level of our deed. A shoemaker is not as fine a man after he has made a poor pair of shoes as he was before he made them.

All work becomes educating when heartily entered into with one's finest powers.

Employes object to being treated as machines, but the fact is that they treat themselves as machines and tend to convert themselves into a machine whenever they do a job simply for the sake of getting it done and getting the pay for it.

If we have no other respect for ourselves than what a machine has for itself, the employer is not very much to blame if he puts only the same estimate upon us himself.

The Kind of Employe That Never Is Promoted.

Such labor is slave-labor. It is not by any performance as servile as that that a worker puts himself in the line of promotion.

Employes who never do a stroke of work but what they have stipulated to do, nor work of any higher quality or finish than what is specified in the contract, never become candidates for advancement.

Most of what is said about "pull" as means of being placed in positions of larger service and larger pay is the senseless whine of lazy workers.

Faithful talent, when it exists, does not need to be boosted into prominent place by auxiliary helps.

Nine times out of ten the door of opportunity opens to the man who has stuff and fidelity enough in him to be fit to go through.

Promotion is earned by us when we do a little more work and a little better work than is necessitated by the literal terms of our engagement.

* * *

Important for All to Have Varied Interests

ANY man makes a mistake who, in addition to his stated occupation, has no other object in which he invests at least a little of his time and a small portion of his interest.

This is important in any case, and especially in the instance of those whose employment is a manual one, or who are engaged in the pursuit of money.

We are regularly contracted or expanded to the breadth of our occupation, so that if that occupation is a narrow one—one which gives mind and heart no wide area to range over—we tend to become correspondingly narrow, and only a few of our powers of thought and feeling come into exercise.

The life of nine men out of ten consists in doing small things and in doing them over and over.

Such living must make a man small, an his only deliverance lies in having som larger field, out into which he can occasionally look, at least for an instant.

It is the failure to find the relief afforded in this way that produces that weariness of life and contempt for life experienced by the correspondent whose letter was printed in the BOSTON AMERICAN and editorially commented upon.

What had been the occupation of the poor despondent his letter did not state, but, however that may be, when "reached the age when the frost began t gather about his ears" there was nothing to which his interest attached.

What a Contrast in Lives of These Two Men

He had nothing but himself, and that was not much; at any rate, that is what his letter indicates.

In the surrounding world, which is so full of large concerns and of living interest, there was nothing to which his thought connected itself or around which, as around a trellis, his feelings entwined themselves.

He had planted no seeds in his little garden, and so there were no blossoms upon the ground and no fragrance in the air.

Sharply in contrast with his withered experience and empty world is that of a certain old gentleman of eighty-five, well known in this city, who has gone on through all the years continually adding to the number of the things that he gave his thought and interest to, till his garden is full of plants whose leaves do not wither and whose blossoms do not fade, and who said to a friend only yesterday:

"I am so blind that I can hardly see, and so feeble that it is only with exertion that I can move about; but even so I would love to go on living just as I am forever."

Despondency of the sort just referred to is a form of moral suffocation, and comes from the selfish encasing of one's self in the contracted cocoon of one's small occupation, beyond the reach and the freshening of more generous interests.

Little Bobbie's Pa

By William F. Kirk

WEN Pa caim hoam last nite he was very sad. I nevver saw him that way wen he caim hoam beefoar. Sumtimes wen he goes away in the morning he is sad, but nevver beefoar wen he cums hoam at nite.

What is the matter, derest? sed Ma. You seem to be all deepressed about sumthing.

I am deepressed, Pa sed. The day is cold & dark & dreary, it rains & the wind is nevver weery. I feel straingely disconsolate tonite, sed Pa. Oh, life, what is thare in thee after all, sed Pa. Wud that I were beneeth the sod, waiting the judgment day, Pa sed.

There must be a littel Tutonic blud in you, Ma sed to Pa. I doant say that you wud de-liberate-ly go out commit suicide, but between you & me, if I was a grocer I wuddent sell you a clothes line on a day like this.

I wuddent go so far as to say that you wud hang yurself, Ma sed, but if I was a farm hand I wuddent let you go into a barn if thare was any rafters handy.

You have got me wrong, sed Pa. I doant want you to think that I am enuff of a dog to shuffel off this mortal coil & leeve my wife & deer child without a protektor, but I am sad tonite.

In fact, sed Pa, I am so sad that I have rote a poem about Gloom. Maybe, Pa sed, after I have read it to you I mite send it to a comic magazeen. This is how it goes, Pa sed:

And now the gloomy twilite fades away,
 Leeving the deeper, darker gloom of nite;
 I feel like one who jest has lost a fite,
Or a collector wich can't maik folks pay.
Why does the wurld reegard me as a jay?
 Why does eech rival hand it to me right?
 Were I a dog, I'd hang myself for spite.
This erth's a gloomy place on wich to stay.

Do you care vary much for this poem wich I have rote, sed Pa to Ma.

I am crazy about it, Ma sed to Pa. It sounds like a running brook wich has dried up. It has the sweet melody of a gander singing the sex-tet from Lusha. It has the peecular lilt of a longshoreman singing After the Ball Was Over.

How do you like it, Bobbie, sed Pa. I think it is vary fine, I toald Pa, beekaus I saw that Pa felt pritty bad & I dident want him to feel any worse.

I knew, my brite littel son wud appreshiate it, Pa sed. He gits all his brains from my side of the fambly. Maybe he does, sed Ma, but he is vary fresh sumtimes. He gets that from yure side of the fambly, sed Pa. Doant you remember how fresh yure father was wen I first used to call on you. Doant you remember, Pa sed, wen I was first courting you, how yure old man used to cum in the parlor & pull all them Joe Millers about When is a door not a door?

I nevver notised it, sed Ma.

Well, sed Pa, I certingly notised it. I suppose he figgered, Pa sed, that I was a live one & he shud maik himself as entertaining as possibel in order to nail me beefoar I got away. You ought not to talk that way about my deer father, sed Ma. I always notis, Ma sed, that wen you are feeling blue you nevver feel blue enuff to go to bed without pulling a few meen remarks about my fambly.

Ah, well, sed Pa, into eech life sum rain must fall. Sum lives must be dark & dreery, Pa sed.

Then Pa & Ma played cards & Pa won two (2) dollars from the allowance wich he had gave Ma the day beefoar, & then Pa beegan to laff & reecite a different kind of poetry, like See the merry sunshine, sunshine, sunshine.

Then Pa took the two (2) dollars & went to bed.

Home From College.

By WINIFRED BLACK.

HOME from school, are you, Miss Ambition?

Home from school, are you, young sir of the broad shoulders?

And have you noticed your mother's face?

Changed a little, don't you think?

It's a year since you saw her, and, oh! what burdens a year can bring to a human heart.

She won't tell you about them — that isn't mother's way. She'll wait till you have gone to the tennis game or out to the golf links before she has her little cry. Why, you are young and light-hearted, and she wants to keep you so.

But how about you?

You studied a whole lot about organized philanthropy back there at college, and you grew tremendously wise concerning the economic conditions. Why don't you start in and put your knowledge to a little practical test?

Mother has been ordering three meals a day for years. Did it ever occur to you that she may be so sick and tired of it that the very word dinner makes her faint and ill?

You can think of lots of good things to eat. Why don't you take mother's purse and do mother's ordering this Summer?

You'll learn a whole lot about "economic conditions" that you suspected.

There's a great pile of stockings in the darning basket. Why can't you help out a little and reduce that pile?

How about your father, young man? Irritable is he, and given to looking on the dark side of things?

Why don't you show him that you take an interest in his affairs—that you admire him for the way he has conducted them.

He'd be ten years younger in a day—and it would be due to you.

Home from school? Come on, sons and daughters, let's make this homecoming a glory to those at home as well as to ourselves.
